BACON OR SHAKESPEARE?

If Bacon wrote the plays, pray tell me, then,
Were all the wondrous sonnets from his pen?
Did Bacon, he himself a versifier,
Resign these lovely lays and not aspire
To be the author? Lay them on the shelf
And only keep the bad ones for himself?

The argument against us most in vogue
Is this, that William Shakespeare was a rogue—
His character assailed, his worth belied,
And every little foible magnified.
We know that William one night after dark
Went stealing deer in lonely Lucy Park;
We also know Lord Bacon oft was prone
To take another's money for his own.
Now come, deal fairly, tell me which is worse—
To poach a stag or steal another's purse?
Lord Bacon did confess to his superiors
That he had taken bribes from his inferiors.
From his own shoulders then it will be seen
That he both robbed his Country and his Queen—
A kind of Aldermanic Yankee Doodle
Who cherished what we understand as boodle.
So if good character is to be the test of it,
It seems to me that William had the best of it.

If Shakespeare was so poor a piece of stuff,
How is it Bacon trusted him enough
To throw these valued treasures at his feet,
And not so much as ask for a receipt?
Such confidence is almost a monstrosity,
And speaks of unexampled generosity.
Oh, liberal Francis, tell us why we find
Pope calling thee the "meanest of mankind?"

And, oh, ye actors, brothers all in Art,
Permit me just one moment to depart
From this, my subject, urging you some day
To seek this sacred spot and humbly pray
That Shakespeare's rage toward us will kindly soften,
Because, you know, we've murdered him so often.
I ask this for myself, a poor comedian:
What should I do had I been a tragedian?
It surely is—who'er the cap may fit—
Conceded that these wondrous plays were writ.
So if my Shakespeare's not the very same,
It must have been another of that name.

MR. DEXTER'S DIARY.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY ALAN HILARY.

The strange story I am about to tell you is one that trenches on matters psychological, and it would, therefore, be well for you to remember that all the Wise Man knew was that he knew nothing, and that consciousness of ignorance resembles the Fear of the Lord; in that it is the beginning of wisdom. "Mind over Matter" is a cant phrase, which in its frequent and glib use often means rather less than nothing; but, come to analyze it, and neither you nor I, nor anyone else, can tell when the potentialities of what, in default of a better name, we call spirit, with regard to what we know as matter, begin or end. With this warning, I give you the strange story of my friend, Hamil Dexter, as I took it from his diary, bequeathed to me with various other books and papers from the asylum in which he died, leaving you to coincide or not with the very intelligent and work-a-day jury that sat on the great Dexter murder case and adjudged the murderer to be stark mad.

I will premise that for a closer welding together of the story, as written down in Dexter's diary, I have compressed matters transpiring in several days, and even weeks, under one date.

I submit the extracts as follow:

MARCH 4, 1886.—"My old college friend, John Gledstone, who is at present one of the biggest of big guns by reason of his recent travels and studies in Hindustan, came up here today from New York. He wants a rest after the severe and dyspepsia fraught course of banquets and receptions he has had to undergo at the hands of all the learned societies—Ogical, Aplical and otherwise, both in this country and in Europe. Well, Hindustan may have brevetted John as a hero, but it has been, I am afraid, at the expense of his life. Even this Sleepy Hollow of ours can hardly soothe those shattered nerves. The sword is fast fretting through the scabbard. John had never a particularly strong physique; he was always, so to speak, over engined for his beam. I don't like those flabby, ugly pouches under the deepset gray eyes, which themselves blaze with a light that seems hardly of this world. His bent back; his hands, formerly so firm and white, now trembling like the claws of a senile vulture, while the tendons stand out under the yellow parchment of the skins as taut as the strings over a violin bridge, speak to me louder than any doctor's verdict. Twenty years of ever present peril and hardship in places where no white man's voice had ever before echoed; twenty years with fanatic Fakeers, Lamas and Brahmins for his constant companions; twenty years of inhuman asceticisms, interminable vigils, unspeakable fastings and iron bound contemplations, have brought John Gledstone within a short stone's throw of eternity.

"Every day brings increasing proof of John's failing health. No one knows this better than himself, and what adds fuel to the fire which is consuming him is his grief at the thought that he will have to leave the world without being able to bequeath to it the fruition of his labors, and what labors! At times he will cast off his usual reticence, and will talk by the hour of ghastly experimenis and still more ghastly self abnegation, imposed to render the body subservient to the mind, and holds forth with such fervor about what he calls the 'subtle soul-flame,' Bilocation and Transmigration of Spirits, Astral and Mahatmic Projections, the Avatars of Krishna, the ultimate absorption into Nirvana, and such like heathenish, uncanny stuff, that the wife is fairly afraid of him and the rector, after running a tilt with him once or twice, has ceased coming to the house for his nightly chat, cigar and glass of grog."

MARCH 8.—"The positive and negative poles have struck a sudden spark. Poor John, who is in reality, dying fast, seems to have taken a violent infatuation for my boy Eustace—such a contrast to his poor, frail self. Eustace is always with him; the boy's superabundant vitality seems to have a strange attraction for the sick man, and it was only today that he said to me, gazing at 'Stace with a curious covetousness about his mouth and eyes that almost frightened me, 'Dexter, old man, if I could only borrow your boy's body for a year, I think I could revolutionize the world.' And Eustace is as fine a lad, though I say it myself who shouldn't, as you can meet in a long day's walk, with his frank and free twenty-two year old head set well on his broad shoulders, and more brawn than brains perhaps, but all the same, he's as whole souled and single eyed as the noonday sun. I only hope Gledstone don't infuse any of those uncanny Brahminical doctrines into his honest head."

APRIL 16.—"I was over John's bed today, and he said: 'Dexter, old friend, I'm food for worms. Don't shake your head; I know it only too well, and I want to make my will. I've neither chick nor child, and am going to leave everything I have, unconditionally, to your boy. There is ten thousand in cash, and another ten in U. S. Bonds, and, above all, there are my books and papers. I will let him know how I wish him to dispose of them.'"

APRIL 28.—"John Gledstone died today. He knew the end was coming, and, at his own strange request, no one was allowed, not even the doctor, in the room to watch his dying struggles except 'Stace. When all was over, the watcher summoned us, and there lay the corpse of my poor friend, the face a dirty splotchy white, terribly distorted, with the lips almost burnt away, as though by some powerful acid. There was a dim mist in the room giving forth a pungent odor, that sent a nameless and hardly comfortable sensation stealing over one."

"'Stace tel's me the poor fellow suffered terribly, and that his sufferings were increased by some sort of medicine he took to alleviate his pain, but which he seemed to have made too strong, and which burnt his lips in the manner I noticed."

MAY 10.—"How changed 'Stace is since Gledstone's death and how changed for the worse. His frank, filial nature has disappeared entirely, leaving behind a scurf, oh! so thin, and oh! so irksome, of politeness utterly ineffectual in concealing what seems to be his growing distaste for my presence. He has also contracted—I know not how—the slightly domineering ways and abstracted irritability of my dead friend. At times a tone of his voice, a shrug of his shoulders, a subtle, almost ungraspable idiosyncracy makes me start up and look for Gledstone. It is as if he had imbibed from those accursed books and papers the most intimate character of their author. The weight of forty years seems to have been added to his shoulders; he has given up his former work, pleasures and companions to mew himself up with his horrible legacy of books, and at times, when bent over the pages, I seem to see Gledstone pouring out of those bright eyes."

MAY 16.—"Things are growing worse and worse with Eustace. I have ceased comment on his conduct to me personally, but he seems to have utterly forgotten even common courtesy to his mother and sisters. As for his books, he is hardly ever away from them. He writes, too, continually. What cursed influence is at work here. It is all so sudden, so unaccountable, so unspeakably saddening."

MAY 20.—"The explosion has come at last. Today I remonstrated with Eustace on his conduct to his mother; he simply turned on his heel without a word, went to his room, and in a couple of hours more was on his way to New York without a farewell to a soul. This last stroke will kill his mother."

From this point the diary goes on without incident for nearly a year. During all that time no message came from Eustace, though Dexter learnt from outside sources, that he shunned all company but his books, and that his comings, goings and doings, were wrapt in the utmost mystery.

Under the date of April 24, 1887, comes the following entry:

"God in heaven! My boy, my poor boy! Dying, dying from typhoid! And we parted in anger! Why is he to be taken and I to be left? Is it because the sickle lops the tall flower, and passes over the low head of the salt grizzled weed? Oh! John, John Gledstone, you came into my house to turn my lad's brain. It is you I have to blame for all this; you who disseminated the poison of your thoughts like an upas tree. But there is no good in raving at the dead. I must see Eustace. I will take the first train to New York tomorrow."

MAY 2.—"I am writing this in a prison cell, where I have been for the last few days, bowed to the earth under the crushing weight of a charge of murder. I am writing it for two reasons; firstly, that in some measure I may distract myself from my terrible position, and secondly, that if any of my friends may chance to read this they may judge the more lightly of my guilt, for guilty in one sense I am.

"I took the train to New York, as on April 24 I wrote I would. I found 'Stace's address with much difficulty, and when I got to the house I noticed the roadway outside strewn with straw to procure the silence of passing vehicles; the blinds, too, were all pulled down.

"The servant who answered my ring told me that Dr. Winslow, who was attending my boy and was his only visitor, considered his case hopeless, and had given strict orders that no one should be allowed to the sick man's bedside. I told the fellow who I was. He asked me to wait in the parlor till the doctor came down, when I could ask him as to the advisability of my being allowed to the deathbed of my own son. I agreed to this arrangement, and sat down to wait for the doctor. But I speedily grew restless and uneasy; some spirit of the air seemed to be urging me and to whisper in my ear: 'Don't wait; go upstairs now; there is something there for you to see.' My temples throbbed fiercely; a fire danced before my eyes; the ceiling seemed to be closing down on me like a gross pall of lead and to be slowly squeezing the life out of me. To escape the crushing sensation I left the room, and, led as by some one's irresistible volition, I walked upstairs, treading softly, though I knew not why, to the sick room. There is a little ogive window let in the room wall; by craning my neck I could see all that went on inside, while from the position of the bed I myself remained unobserved. It was some strange instinct that thus led me to play Peeping Tom. I looked in and saw the doctor's profile as he bent over the bed—a dark, strong face, replete with vigor and intellect. On the bed, with the livid kiss of death on his sweating brow, and glaring at his physician with the same tigerish phosphorescent expression of envy and desire as had once shocked me in the face of Gledstone, lay the form of my boy Eustace. It was hard to reconcile that open, though pallid, brow and those devilish eyes. I was beginning to feel ashamed of my eavespeeping, and turned to knock at the door, when the same voice that had urged me from the study whispered: 'Wait and watch,' and a hand seemed pressed against me to hold me in my place. The dying man was speaking. I turned once more to the window.

'Doctor,' he said, 'I may as well go game; let's drink to my safe and speedy journey to kingdom come,' and his laugh sounded like the harsh jangling of discordant bells. The doctor made some reply I could not catch, and, evidently desiring to humor his patient, poured out a couple glasses of brandy. He turned away his head for a few moments, and in those moments I saw the man in the bed raise himself, take something from beneath his pillow, and with the quickness of thought spill a white powder into the doctor's glass. The doctor took the glass from the sick man's hand, outstretched to hand it to him, with a pleasant smile, and with a nod as though to say 'Here's luck,' gulped the liquid. Hardly had he drank it when a ragged shudder passed across his face like the shiver of unripe corn under the breeze; a light foam crusted his lips, quivering with inarticulate mumblings; his hands grabbled in the air, and then with a gurgle as of water poured from a bottle, he fell, face upwards, on the floor, slain by that liquid lightning. I was in a whirl of terror and of wonder at the crime when my attention was again fixed by the actions of the murderer in the bed. He had thrown off the bedclothes, and from some place of concealment in the bed had taken out a tiny brazier and chafing dish. On this he sprinkled some dried herbs and the contents of a curiously shaped Oriental phial.

"He lit the compound, blowing it into a flame! then, while his lips murmured an Abracadabraca in some unknown tongue, his hands, disphanous as tissue, and glowing with some electric fluid that seemed to take the place of blood in the transparent veins, moved in mystic passes. His eyes glowed like two molten orbs of scathing fire, and his hair crackled and sparkled with fiery stars, that shot off into the lazy, odorous curls of smoke rising from the chafing dish. Suddenly, a croaking noise burst from his lips. The phosphorescene died away, and he fell back on the bed, stark and straight, with no life in his limbs. I thought all was over. But, no! A small globe of flame, in color an unearthly sapphire blue, hovered over those leaden hued lips like a gorgeous dragon fly over a noxious weed, and then detaching itself, floated across the room to the cold upturned lips of the poisoned doctor. Over them it flittered for a second, with the graceful poising of the dragon fly before settling, came down, hovered once more over the open mouth, and then disappeared. And the murderer lay stark on the bed, his lips apart in an infernal rictus and scorched, just as had been the dead lips of Gledstone.

"My God! They are fools that say the age of miracles is past. Never man saw a greater miracle than I saw in that hour The dead body of Dr. Winslow moved. The movement, a first slight, increased till it became the convulsive shivering that the application of the galvanic battery induces in the living frame. Some superhuman power was at work within what was but just a moment ago the husk only of a man, restoring the light to the eye, the red moisture to the lip, the pulsation to the heart and the mysterious essence to the nerve centres. In less than an hour after he had fallen to the floor a corpse, the doctor rose up again, recalled from the dead, a sentient, living and thinking being, once more, with the fire, the seventh circle of hell, in his eye. He glanced contemptuously at the body on the bed, which bore the semblance of my boy Eustace, and with a short, hard laugh that sounded to me like nothing mortal, sneered:

"'Well, John Gladstone, if John Gladstone you still can be called and still remain after all these enforced changes, your devotion to science is giving you a hard time of it and is, I am afraid, fast blunting those finer feelings which stickle at one's playing fast and loose with the existences of one's neighbors. Through hard work and privations you originally bring yourself to the door of that domain men call Death. Thanks, however, to those esoteric arts that old purblind fool Dexter scoffed at, you dispossess his hopeful, who, after all, was nothing but a brawny clodhopper, of his own home, and enter into what, I must confess, would have been a first class and most serviceable domicile, but for that cursed typhoid which sent all my schemes 'gangin' agley' and forced me to commit, in order to preserve myself for the benefit of civilization and science, what would be called, I suppose, by most gentlemen who know no better, a second very heinous crime.'

"The scales fell from my eyes. This Gledstone, this fiend, whom I took to be my friend, whose heart was fouler and blacker than any devil in the hideous mythology he had learnt, had slain my pride, my boy my Eustace, as I had seen him, disguised in Eustace's form, slay the doctor. This explained his wish to be alone with Eustace when he felt his death was near; this explained all the trouble I had with the seeming Eustace. I did not stop long to think though. His time was come at last. 'God helping,' thought I, 'you shall murder no other.' The voice that whispered 'Wait!' before, whispered now no more. But the whole world seemed one Titanic peal of bells clanging out 'Kill! Kill!' and the hand that just a while ago pressed me back, now thrust me on. I bounded into the room and at the throat of the Thing, for man I cannot call it, my feeble frame feeling as if Heaven had wedded its lightning to my blood to tingle down my nerves and throb down my muscles. The Thing before me doubled up like a sheet of paper as my fingers grabbed at its throat, cracking and cracking again as they bit on the windpipe.

"No Hindu devilties, no Siva, Brahma or Vishnu, no herb, no brazier or chafing dish, no Oriental phial, no muttered charm or weaving pass could shake off that deadly grip which was so slowly and so surely sending the soul of John Gledstone to that Nirvana of which he had talked so rapturously, and yet was so strangely loath to visit. No weird spell could avert those hungry, avenging eyes, literally distending with the fat feast of torture they were witnessing from gazing on the bloodshot eyes, the lolling tongue and the face now as black as the pitchy Hell to which their owner was fast hastening.

"I remembered no more till I heard a confused buzz of voices and felt hands tugging at the hands that clung as tightly to the throat of the dead man that lay under me as do the tentacles of the octopus to their prey.

"And now I am charged with a double murder, with the murder of Dr. Winslow and of my own dear son, forsooth! The trial comes off tomorrow. Whatever be the issue I care not. My twelve honest jurymen, full fed, matter of fact and intensely materialistic, as once I myself, can hardly be blamed if they refuse to believe my grim tale. Well, what of it? I have nothing left on earth. My wife and daughters could hardly bear to see my face again. But my Eustace, so foully done to death, is, perhaps, waiting for his father and his avenger, and whatever measure this earthly judge may mete out to me, I am filled with a deep hope that, in the unerring scales of the Great Judge, I may be found not entirely wanting."

HERR FERDINAND STARK.

With this issue we present a portrait of Herr Ferdinand Stark, the eminent young Hungarian violinist, who has been earning fame and shekels on the Pacific Coast for the past four years. Although his field of labor in this country has thus far been confined to California and the West, he is well and favorably known in the East. His talent, style, technique, bowing and tone combine to individualize and distinguish him. Herr Stark was born at Arab, Hungary, May 1, 1863. After years of industrious study under the best masters, his career in his native land is said to have been a brilliant one. In 1887 he accepted an engagement as concertmeister with the Electric Hungarian Orchestra, of Buda Pesth, for a series of concert at San Francisco and on the Pacific Slope. At the termination of his contract he organized what are known as Stark's Austro-Hungarian Orchestra, now playing their second season at Broadmoor Casino, Colorado Springs, Col., and thousands of visitors and tourists through the West will remember with pleasure their performances, each man working with a conscientious earnestness which is only seen in permanent organizations, the success and reputation of which depends upon the excellence of ensemble, as well as individual playing. The Austro-Hungarian Orchestra stands prominently to the front as a musical organization.

CHICAGO DISAPPOINTED.

It Sees "The Junior Partner" for the First Time—Other Openings.

[Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—The novelty of the week was the first production in Chicago, at the Columbia, Aug. 7, of Sydney Rosenfeld's "Junior Partner." The piece received its premier before a light house, and was very far from successful. The Inter Ocean scores play and players in a column critique. The Tribune calls Mr. Rosenfeld's work an impertinence, and says the cast is slim. The Herald says it is farce of the lowest order, containing much that is very broad, much that is tedious and not a little that is vulgar. "The Junior Partner" did not please the audience any better than it did the critics, and may be stamped as a failure. It runs two weeks, preceded by "Frederic Lemaitre."....."On Change" began its second week at Hooley's to a crowded house, and last night its business was immense. The play improves with every performance, and it is an unqualified success.....At McVicker's "A Trip to the Circus" began its second week to a large and delighted audience. UNDER WHITE TENTS

M. BESANCON, one of the three aeronauts rescued from the car of the balloon Jupiter, at Paris, has given an account of his perilous adventure. The balloon was carried out to sea immediately it left the grounds of the Havre Casino. M. Besancon at once opened the escape valve and attached the cone anchor to a cord eighty metres long. The storm was so violent that it broke the cord, and from that moment the aeronauts lost all command over the balloon. About 10 o'clock the car was being dragged through the waves. The aeronauts heard distinctly the voices of fishermen in their boats, which from time to time passed near them; but the night was so dark that none of them perceived the balloon. At last, after regarding themselves as lost, the balloon, at about 3 o'clock, suddenly rose to an altitude of over 2,000 metres. The hopes of the aeronauts then revived; but by 5 o'clock in the morning the car was once more being dragged along in the sea. All the ballast had been thrown out, and the aeronauts had also taken off their coats and thrown them away to lighten the car. All three of the aeronauts were worn out with fatigue and benumbed with cold. M. Demeyer had lost the power of speech. They were all thoroughly discouraged, when they perceived the mast of a ship in the distance. Their signals of distress were seen, and the ship bore down upon them. A boat was put out, and the aeronauts were pulled into it. The balloon then shot into the air with such rapidity that it was soon out of sight. The aeronauts, who were taken on board the ship Germania, were treated with kindness, and were at noon transferred to the French sloop, Reine des Anges, which put them ashore at Camaret, near Brest. M. Demeyer, who is a young man of 26, has related to a journalist with what difficulty he threw the bags of ballast out of the car while it was being dragged through the waves, and with what pleasure he saw the balloon rise when he had thrown the last bag overboard. It was after the balloon had risen and was descending again that the aeronauts took off their coats and threw them away, with the hope of avoiding a second immersion in the sea. Fortunately, all the aeronauts are now in good health and spirits.

FRANK ROBERTSON, general agent of Young Bros. & Co's Circus, has resigned his position to accept a similar one with Kelly's Spectacular Co.

CHARLES ALBION asks us to state that he is the original of that name, and that he is not with the team of Albions now with the La Pearl Show.

CHAS. LEE'S LONDON SHOWS.—We are on our thirteenth week, and it is one of our best, despite hot weather and the old superstition of the dreaded 13. We are meeting with some opposition, but they fail to hurt our business. This is one of the best seasons that the London ever played to, and it seems by all reports to be an off season for shows of our size. Mr. Lee was ahead last week, and reports everything fine. Joe Hewitt, our treasurer, will take out a burlesque company, opening in October, at New Market, Can. Prof. Stimpson left at Philips, Me., to play dates in the East. Seaman and Burk are making a hit in the East with their breakaway ladder perch. Prof. Hager's Red Hussar Band is discoursing some of the finest music ever played with this show. Clifton and Eggleston's Band, No. 2, is the hit of the parade. Frank Acton is forming a partnership with a triple bar performance. Mr. Lee has added to his already fine menagerie a fine specimen of Nova Scotia ibex. Reports from Winquarters say that everything is dressed in a new coat of paint. The new ring barn is one of the finest made. Mrs. Lee has purchased four new ponies, which she will break for next Winter.

BIG business is reported from the Barnum & Bailey Show., Mrs. John O'Brien was obliged to retire at Cleveland, through illness, and Mrs. Byron Rose is filling her place with satisfaction. Chas. Dunham lost a valuable diamond stud at Toledo and nothing has come to light regarding it. Lulu La Tosca, the snake charmer, also lost a jewel the same day, but it was found when taking down the tent at night. Sadie Hoffman is making the chariot races exceptionally exciting.

WM. DE BOE, balancing trapeze and high wire walker, is a prominent feaure of Fred Locke's Show.

DR. MERLIN AND WIFE, and Nat Franklin have just finished a tour of Maine, and are at Bar Harbor for the balance of the Summer.

CAMPBELL AND CONKLING are with the Wizard Oil Co., No. 46.

THE roster of Diamond Kit's Medicine Co. is: Edith Madden, Steward and Harris, Wm. Gibbons, Miss Edwards, Wm. Soddeler, J. C. Morgan.

NOTES FROM WITHERELL & DOUD'S PAVILION "U. T. C." Co.—Eleven weeks have rolled swiftly by since our opening, and we have no reason to grumble. Business has averaged big. We have had lots of rainy weather and one blowdown, causing us to lose the show that night, and, excepting once before, this show had never lost a night since it started, many years ago. It goes without saying that salaries are paid promptly. We are among the Summer resorts in the Catskill Mountains, and it's a holiday all the time, the Summer boarders hailing our arrival with delight, and considering it "just lovely" to see "Uncle Tom" under canvas. Geo. Wentworth is always ready to talk with the boarders, who oft times send a committee to inspect the tent and report on the propriety of attending. The genial George always send them away smiling. Kimball Gillett joined July 29. Prof. Miller's Band and Orchestra are doing good work.

LOUIS E. COOKE, undoubtedly one of the most versatile agents in the line of great shows, and who seems to fit almost any position, has received a very substantial offer to manage the publicity department of the World's Fair Celebration Co., of Chicago, an amusement project organized to celebrate the event which the World's Fair is to commemorate.

MRS. D. J. FITZGERALD, of W. B. Reynolds' Show, was presented by the members of the show with a gold watch and chain, and a gold ring, recently. It was a birthday event.

T. M. SAYMAN'S VEGETABLE SOAP CO. includes Dr. T. M. Sayman, lecturer; Samuel Ford, Sandy Miller and James Holman, Frank Kirk, C. W. Allen, stage manager, and Galysam's Orchestra. They report good business through Missouri.

THE KEELEY FAMILY, formerly of Fillis' Australian Circus, have joined Harmston's Circus at Shanghai, China. Harmston's Circus has been increased, according to a Shanghai correspondent of The Hongkong Telegraph, by the purchase of the den of tigers, and other wild animals, including a historic old lion and the gigantic bear presented to Sig. Chiarini by the Mikado of Japan, which were sold by Chiarini to the great Chinese Gardens for six thousand taels some two or three years ago.

J. B. GAYLORD is at Singapore, buying wild animals to export to the States. Chas. Benner is also with Mr. Gaylord. H. Lee, of Penang, has gone into partnership with Mr. Gaylord in this enterprise, Mr. Lee to buy and ship to Mr. Gaylord to San Francisco any wild animals obtainable from Penang, or from East India, Burmah and the native states. Mr. Benner is to remain at Singapore and work that end, including Java and Borneo. Wild animals are very hard to obtain even in that country, to induce the the native to capture them alive, the risk being too great. Though they are offering big prices to induce the natives, still they decline the offer, and prefer taking a less sum from the government for killing them by way of reward. Lee & Gaylor have thirty men at present in the jungle, trying to capture a large snake said to be thirty feet in length. These men, though they have been fifteen days in the jungle, have not succeeded in hunting the snake down as yet. Mr. Gaylord has enough animals at present for a shipment, and he intends to leave Singapore in about four weeks' time with the first shipment. He intends opening an office at San Francisco.

NOTES FROM THE MEXICAN BILLY WILD WEST SHOW.—Business the past two weeks has been good, considering the stormy weather and strong opposition. We are now on our last year's circuit. Billy Brown, Dr. War Eagle, Joe White Feather, Chief Little Horse and Polinia Waste join next week, which will double the strength of the company. A strong Wild West express will be placed on the race tracks. The show will make a long tour South, and will remain out till Dec. 15.

HAIM TAHAR, manager of the troupe of Arabs with the Sells Bros.' Circus, will hereafter assume his father's name, Shiek Hadj Tahar Ben Mohomet. His father is Shiek of the Province of Sus, N. E. Morocco.

GUS LEE AND HARRY BOWER are organizing a company to play the Pacific Coast this season, opening at South Chicago about Aug. 20. The show will be known as Gus Lee's Clown Burlesque Circus, and will carry fifteen performers and a fully uniformed band.

L. MAYA, for many years associated with Chiarini's Circus, is in town, looking after the interests of that show, which is now in its forty-fourth year of continuous traveling. This is its third trip around the world.

WHILE BURK'S CIRCUS was being broken up Sunday, Aug. 7, prior to leaving Newark, N. J., where it had been showing for several days, some of the circus men threw a tramp out of a freight car. The crowd, which had been hanging around all night and growling with the tent men, championed the tramp's cause, and a free fight followed, during which clubs, stones, pieces of coal and pistols were used with freedom. News of the battle reached Police Headquarters, and a squad was sent to the place. They returned with three circus men—Henry Richards, of Cincinnati; James Lavender, of Chicago, and George Brown, of Philadelphia. The wagon also brought Edward Jewell, who had been clubbed about the head. He charged Brown with inflicting the injury, and the latter was held in $300 bail. Richards was discharged and Lavender fined $15.

THE JOHN ROBINSON ADVANCE CAR, No. 1, met with a severe accident at Suisun Junction, Cal., forty miles south of Sacramento, July 28, at 9 o'clock A. M. A letter says: "We were placed on a side track for the local passenger train to take us to Napa City. The overland train from Portland, which was two and a half hours behind time, came dashing along at the rate of twenty-five miles per hour, and, by a serious mistake of the conductor of the local train, misplaced the switch. The fast train struck our car at the rear end, and completely demolished it. There were ten men on the car at the time, and several were badly shaken up, including old James Miller, who was bruised about the head and breast, but is able to be around. It was a miracle that anybody escaped without death or injury. The superintendent of the railroad came to our assistance, and did everything he could to transfer paper and advertising material to a special car, so as not to lose any time. Our car was immediately taken to the shops at Sacramento, by a special engine, to be repaired, which will take fully ten days. Photographs were taken of the engine and car together, and after being separated, any one looking at the photograph must wonder how we ever escaped. We are now on time, and will receive our car at Stockton or Oakland.

A DISPATCH dated Mount Holly, N. J., Aug. 7, says: Charles Kester, a colored barber of this city, and William Little, of Pawnee Bill's Wild West, but hailing from Camden, wanted here for stealing a horse, saddle and harness from the livery stable of William L. Anderson, have been located at Waterford, Camden County. The horse was brought here today, having been sold by them for $50. It is valued at $300. The saddle and harness, the property of Rev. R. F. H. Pierce, were also secured. The officers had traced the thieves to the woods, where they escaped.

FROM SELLS BROS.' CIRCUS.—With beautiful weather and abundant crops in an undisputed territory, the business of the Sells Bros. is all that could be desired. While other shows are fighting the Sells Bros.' have sailed smoothly along, gathering in the shekels as they go. From the first stand in the great grain belt of Kansas and Missouri to date of writing (Aug. 4), nothing compared to our business was ever seen. If there is any truth in the statement that "the proof of the pudding is in the eating,' then surely our performance pleases them. Lewis Sells left for a trip to the East. E. Sells and wife returned to the show at Joplin, Mr. Davis, of the Barnum Show, visiting us at the same place.

FROM WALTER L. MAIN'S SHOW.—Here we are in Missouri. The weather is excessively warm, but business is large. The show runs like clockwork, and gives universal satisfaction. East St. Louis has the reputation of being a very rough town on shows, and nearly all showmen expect to fight there and look for a good, heavy "shake down." We saw no signs of either. On account of the sickness of his partner, Burt, Fred Fisher was compelled to throw up his engagement, and he, with his wife and son, left July 30, for Cincinnati, with the good wishes of all. At Pacific we were visited by W. E. Franklin, of the Barnum Show. Rad Moore, a jockey, broke his leg Aug. 5, in the hippodrome races, and is to be left back for treatment. An abundant sum of money was raised among our people to defray all expenses. Our big, new canvas will be here soon.

THE KELLY & ROHRER FREAK SHOW are playing southwest Virginia. They travel by wagons.

FOUR NEW CAGES of animals have been added to Baldwin & Cummings' Railroad Shows, and now three open dens are the parade feature. Harvest time is a bad season for shows in the Northwest, but fortune smiles on this show, and, while the day hous s are not large, night finds the canvas packed to its capacity. Bruce L. Baldwin, one of our proprietors, presented Charles W. Fish, of the Ringling Show, with a shoe worn by the famous trotting horse, Allerton, in the fastest seven heats ever trotted by a horse, the last quarter of the last mile being trotted in 30s. Pat Cummings, for many years assistant to Bob Friar, is business manager. It is rumored that the show will go to California for the Winter. We get new baggage and flat cars at Tekamah, Neb.

SMITH AND ROY have closed a ten weeks' engagement with the Sautelle Show, and are resting at their home, Lyons, N. Y.

THE SILVER BOW SPECIALTY CO. are rehearsing at Chicago, and open their season Sept. 2 at Monunce, Ill. G. H. Watkins is manager, H. A. Wise, assistant; C. H. Mills, Alf. Weathers, Greenforad, Myrtle Marvo, Zoe Ball, Mamie Rodgers, Inia Cravens, Ida Smith, Reynolds, R. B. Merritt, treasurer; A. L. Barlow, business manager; Prof. Larson, music director.

NOTES FROM PETE CONKLIN'S SHOW.—We opened at Logansport, Ind., for one week to good business, and are reorganizing for the Fair season. The list of new faces includes Capt. Car and his troupe of Indians, Devillo, Mdlle. Gazzalo and her rattlesnakes, Prof. Gevard, McNish Family, Prof. Mason's Drum Corps, Dan Nash and John Lewis. The above will be consolidated with the War Museum, under canvas.

GEORGE W. ORRIN, of the well known firm of circus proprietors, the Orrin Bros., writes: "News has just reached me from Mexico City that our trick mule, 'Punch,' has died. He was among the first stock we ever bought, which consisted of ten horses and this mule, from a man named Tubbs, of Schuylerville, N. Y., in 1878. The purchase was made for us by the late George Zebold. The mule was known by many hundred circus people who have been with us. He was, without doubt, one of the best performing trick mules (not kickers) in the world. You often hear of trick horses, but trick mules are scarce. We feel 'Punch's' loss keenly, for not only was he a clever animal, but he was like an old friend to us—the foundation stone and one of the originals of our organizations. All the other horses died long ago."

A NOVELTY for shows, fairs, etc., is found in the compressed air cannon, which is now in the market. It consists of a brass cannon, nearly five feet long, mounted on a truck. It fires a baseball by compressed air, and can be used for target shooting, etc.

RINGLING NOTES.—Our wrinkled war elephant, Hannibal, is renowned for his tooth of gold, having been last season under the dentist's care. But the Ringlings made enough money at Omaha to give all their elephants golden teeth, and some of the actors, too. A preluding incident was the Sunday storm, whose rising clouds curled like the mustache of John Ringling, and whose hurricane wind rent our canvas as the dagger of Brutus rent the mantle of Cæsar. The opposition fellows wrote it up as the God of Justice turning on us the celestial hose, to wash us from the earth. But Monday's business quite confutes this theory, as the people swarmed to the tent like ants around a sugar bowl. At night they stood 200 deep around the ticket wagon, and through the door, with rush and crush, came "not in single file, but in battalions." As in case of Milwaukee, doors were closed before eight o'clock, and people turned away. The members of the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, of the Oasis of Omaha, came 200 strong. Many high bred folks were unable to get reserved seats, and the wealth and aristocracy of the city held lawn parties and circus picnics on the green grass of the hippodrome elipse, crowding three rings when this was cleared for the races. The crowd was most uproarious and jolly, and the show made a four base hit. The Ringling Brothers, tickled, but not laughing, looked on "the smelling scene." Their success this season has been phenomenal everywhere, and the superstitious no longer doubt that the gods of Fate, Success and Luck, meant the "Ring," in the name of Ringling, to stand for a circus "ring."

THOMPSON & SINCLAIR'S TWENTY-FIVE CENT CIRCUS is in its fourth week, playing to good houses. The show is made up as follows: Leon Thompson & Sinclair Bros., proprietors; George Edgerton, general manager; P. E. Hopley, treasurer; M. R. Ward, advance agent; Edgerton Sisters, W. Ritzel, C. Roy Lobel, E. Sproule, Mondell Bros., Lena Hopley, Geo. Edgerton, Etta Ingraham, Brown Brothers, Lizzie Roper, Chas. Filbert and Geo. Rodgers.

GEORGE ORRIN AND FAMILY arrived safely at Antwerp, Aug. 7, after a delightful trip.

ELLA WESNER is to be tendered a benefit at the Kingsland Casino, Coney Island, Aug. 16. The list of volunteers is long, and the testimonial promises to be a success.

PETE JOHNSTON, Montana's crack bucking broncho rider and fancy roper, who is now with W. B Reynolds' Circus, goes with Evans & Hoey's Co. this season.

DURING the parade of Burk's Circus at New Brunswick, N. J., Aug. 8, a negro employe named John Lucas made a savage attack upon three little boys, biting them severely. Lucas says the boys threw stones at him and that one of his teeth was knocked out. Lucas attempted to escape, but was captured and put in jail. Blood poisoning is feared in the case of one boy.

ROSTER of Chippewa Medicine Co., No. 11: Dr. A. F. Twining, lecturer and manager; J. Vanhoe, stage manager; Three Henry Bros., the Clarks, May Thewes, Willie Parker and four Indians.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Philadelphia.—Manager John G. Jermon is the first of the local amusement caterers to rub the Summer dust from his eyes and brace up for the Fall campaign. He inaugurated the season at the Lyceum Aug. 6 with "The Early Birds." The interior of the Lyceum has undergone extensive renovation, and is in proper trim to make a bid for increased patronage. BIJOU.—The interesting but oft repeated fact that Managers Keith & Albee's house is not large enough to accommodate the crush of patrons must again be recorded in describing last week's business. Voltz will continue to represent Manager Bradenburg at the Ninth and Arch Streets Museum. The changes in the interior have been radical, and when completed it will be practically a new theatre, and one of the finest in the city. At Keith's Gaiety Opera House, many improvements are being made, and it will be prettier than ever when it is reopened. The opening date has not been announced as yet. The regular season of the Providence Opera House will begin Aug. 29, when Cleveland's Minstrels will appear for three nights, followed Sept. 1 by N. C. Goodwin Jr. for the balance of the week.

District Attorney for the District of Columbia, is a member of Modjeska's Co. His open letter relative to the safety and comfort of actors, which was published a couple of weeks ago in The Washington Post, and which was replied to by Senator Gallinger through the same channel, has opened the eyes of the "powers that be" to the miserable accommodations accorded to the profession in a majority of the theatres throughout the country. The attention of Congress having been directed to the subject, it only needs the persistent effort of all members of the theatrical profession, in and out of season, to bring about a much needed reform in this direction.

— E. D. Price, manager of the "Miss Helyett" Co., and Adelaide Emerson, an actress in that troupe, were married at the Little Church Around the Corner, this city, Aug. 2, by the Rev. Dr. Houghton. The ceremony was private. This is Mr. Price's second matrimonial venture, and Miss Emerson's second, also.

— Robert T. Haines goes with Thomas W. Keene.

— Murry Woods has returned to the city from Mt. Clemens, Mich.

— Preparations for the opening performance of "The Black Detective" are about complete. Manager Daniel Shelby states that the tour is solidly booked in good houses, and that Wash. T. Melville is delighted with the company.

— Jennie Kaye has been especially engaged to play Topsy in John P. Smith's new version of "U. T. C.," at the Boston Theatre, Boston. F. R. Montgomery has also been engaged.

— C. W. Ravel has closed with the "Kajanka" Co., and will rest for a few weeks at his home, Jersey City, N. J., before joining Leavitt's "Spider and Fly" Co.

— Denville Howe is much exorcised over the published statement in another paper that his comedy company was engaged in pirating plays, and that he is to be prosecuted by Charles Frohman for using "Jane" in the repertory of the Howe Comedy Co. He says: "I have thrown down the gauntlet to Mr. Frohman by giving the first production of "Jane" even given outside of the big cities. My company is not engaged in pirating plays, and we produce nothing but what we have a right to. It is a well known fact, and it has already been acknowledged by the dramatic journal which attacked me, that "Jane" is a plagiarism, and the "Jane" played by the Howe Comedy Co. is taken from the same old English comedy that Mr. Frohman's "Jane" is taken from. The book can be bought for fifteen cents. I have added the comedy to my repertory, and I'm going to keep it there." The Howe Comedy Co. are touring Indiana to reported good business. The roster includes Denville Howe, James Green, F. A Howe, Kin Kinzie, Cliff Earle, Lilly Durham, Jennie Bowen, Marie Kinzie, Lola Heywood, Master Carry, Charles W. Porter and Prof Lance.

— Dominick Murray sailed from Liverpool Aug. 6, en route for Montreal. He should reach his home by the 16th at the latest. Nothing is so far settled as to his movements for the coming season.

— Roster of Sawtelle's Dramatic Co.: Mrs. Jessie E. Sawtelle, Minnie Dehn, Blanche Morgan, Fay Robinson, J. A. Sawtelle, Harry Wilson, Huse N. Morgan, W. C. Bailey, J. A. Cavana, Jas. W. Girard, P. Cregg, Chas. F. Kaufman, E. T. ("Dad") Lambert, Al G. Sweet, J. B. Price, John W. Youngs, Mike Kelly. Walter Ashman, advance agent; J. Al Sawtelle, sole proprietor and manager.

— Henry H. Sylvester leaves Aug. 17, to join one of the largest repertory companies on the road.

— Hope Booth, who is to star in "Euchred," under the management of Harry Etting, has been spending the Summer at Asbury Park, N. J., and Fort Hamilton, L. I. Her season begins Aug 20, and will last thirty-eight weeks. Manager Etting will lead for Canada 11 to look after the interests of "Euchred" there.

— J. J. Hill, the skater, and Lizzie Haywood were married at Buffalo July 18. They have been visiting at his home for the past three weeks. They will be known hereafter as Hill and Haywood.

— Peggy Pryde, the well known English comedienne, has reached London, from where she sends word that, owing to the serious illness of her mother, Jenny Hill, she will not be able to appear in the forthcoming production of "The Black Crook," at the Academy of Music, this city. Miss Pryde has cancelled her contract with Manager Eugene Tompkins by cable. Her date of return to America is uncertain. Her mother is a serious sufferer from pulmonary troubles, and Miss Hill's physician has advised her to take a trip to Australia, which she will do very soon.

— Carlotta, the clever soubrette and character dancer, will introduce a novel terpsichorean specialty in "A Pair of Jacks," with which company she is engaged.

— The Olympia Quartet, who go with Evans & Hoey's Co., have spent a very agreeable vacation. Messrs. Keogh, Sullivan and Randall have been at Mt. Clemens, Mich., and Mr. Mack was a guest of Jas Norrie.

— George W. Lederer's Stock Co left this city afternoon of Aug. 8, and evening of 9 will open their tour at Detroit, Mich., where they will give the initial performance on any stage of "Nothing But Money," a comedy by Mrs. Romualdo Pacheco, the clever authoress of "Incog."

— The Belle Vernon, Pa., Opera House will open Sept. 2 with the Noss Jollities.

— Arthur C. Sidman opens his tour in "Squire Haskins" Aug. 30, at Jamestown, N. Y. The roster: Rose Adelle, Eva Tanguay, Marion Stevens, Nellie Potter, Mrs. Sidman, Geo. Gordon, Will Campbell, Justin A. Baxter, Harry Wilcox, B. A. Richardson, M. J. Markham, R. F. Roberts and Prof. W. C. Humphreys.

— Nathan S. Albee, a well known member of the police force of Boston, died at his residence at an early hour morning of Aug. 4, after an illness of some months. Deceased was born at Machiasport, Me., in 1827, where he lived some thirty years, and where he married Amanda Crocker, a daughter of a prominent sea captain of those days, by whom he had five children, among whom is Edward F. Albee, now general manager of B. F. Keith's business. The deceased followed the business of ship carpenter for some fourteen years. He was appointed on the police force in 1872. For the past two years ill health had prevented his doing duty.

Cincinnati.—The folks over at the Grand Opera House are not saying a word, but they have not been idle during the Summer season. Through the iron bars in front is visible a great network of scaffolding. The theatre is being frescoed and brightened from dome to pit. There will be new upholsteries and carpetings. The Grand is really the best located theatre in Cincinnati today. It is owned by the wealthiest man in the city, and there has often been expressed surprise that the Grand has not been converted into the handsomest Thespian temple in the West. The German Theatre will give Sunday performances here this year, and the house will be controlled by the Miles-Rainforth-Havlin Co.

Boston—The season of 1892-3 is opening, and managers are hoping for far better financial results than accrued from the past season. Booth's Theatre

Feb. 20, Edwin Adams played Narcisse. This was continued for five consecutive Saturdays. "The Marble Heart" was acted March 27, April 3, 10 and 16, with Edwin Adams as Raphael and Frank Lawler as Volage. "Romeo and Juliet" was acted for the sixty-eighth and last time night April 17. "Othello" 19 with Booth as the Moor, Adams as Iago, Mark Smith Sr. as Brabantio, Fanny Morant as Emelia and Mary McVicker (Mrs. Edwin Booth) as Desdemona. Edwin Adams continued "The Marble Heart" on the Saturday night, 26, Booth as Iago and Adams as Othello. Week of May 10 Booth played Othello and Adams Iago, and the following week they alternated the characters. They so continued for a fortnight.

On Saturday evenings, May 8, 15, 22, Edwin Adams played Rover in "Wild Oats." A reading of "Manfred" was given by Mrs. Booth, assisted by the Philharmonic Society, matinee May 26. Edwin Booth made his last appearance this season 29. "The Lady of Lyons" 31, with Adams as Claude and Blanche De Bar as Pauline. This was Adams' benefit and the New York debut of Blanche De Bar. "The Lady of Lyons" was played all the week. The next week, "Narcisse," "The Marble Heart" and "Wild Oats. Julie De Marguerite's dramatization of "Enoch Arden" June 21. Enoch Arden, Edwin Adams; Phillip Ray, Frank Lawler; Capt. Sterling, T. J. Hind; Reuben, A. W. Fenno; Miriam Lane, Fanny Morant; Anne Leigh, Blanche De Bar.

This play held the stage for six weeks, followed Aug. 2 by Joseph Jefferson in "Rip Van Winkle." A matinee performance of "Rip," Sept. 8, for the benefit of the family of J. G. Hanley, late stage manager of the Winter Garden Theatre, when the season closed. Wm. C. Drummond retired from the stage at the close of this season, and became a teacher of dancing. He was the first husband of Miss Stockwell, afterwards Mrs. Geo. H. Barrett, the bare mention of whose name recalls at once to the mind the palmy days of the drama, when she won golden opinions from all sorts of people. During her eventful life Mrs. Barrett saw many reverses, and her path was strewn with thorns rather than roses; still, above and through the clouds that so often settled about her, the star of her genius shone resplendent. Her remarkable personal attractions were spared her to the last, in conjunction with a grace and ease of manner which I have seldom seen excelled. Her face retained all the freshness of youth, without a trace of care, and the tones of her sweetly musical voice

Fell as soft as snow in the sea.
To melt in the heart as instantly.

She died April 20, 1857, of consumption, at an institution in New York, directed and superintended by the Sisters of Charity. She was fifty-five years of age. Those who saw Mr. Drummond at Booth's Theatre playing a second old man could not believe that he was the man who had made his American debut in 1810. Like Wm. Hield, he had been so long out of sight that he was supposed to have been dead many years.

The second season opened Sept. 20, 1869. The first star was Kate Bateman, in Augustin Daly's adaptation of "Leah." Geo. Jordan played Rudolph, Theo. Hamilton, Nathan; Blanche De Bar, Madeline. Kate Bateman played Saturday matinee, but not in the evening, 25, when Arthur Matthison's version of "Enoch Arden" was acted, with Theo. Hamilton as Enoch Arden, Fanny Morant as Miriam, Blanche De Bar as Annie Leigh. Oct. 18, "Mary Warner," for the first time in America.

Pitou as Geo. Aylmer and Fanny Morant as Marian Bock. James H. Hackett opened Nov. 29, as Falstaff, in "Henry IV." Mrs. Lizzie C. Winter (wife of William Winter) acted Kate Percy, D. W. Waller as Hotspur, Theo. Hamilton as Prince Hal and Fanny Morant as Dame Quickly. "Dreams of Delusion," matinee Dec. 11, William E. Sheridan in the leading role. Edwin Booth commenced another engagement in "Hamlet," on Jan. 5, 1870, Mrs. Waller as Meg Merrilies, Monday, Tuesday and Saturday evening. Edwin Booth acted Hamlet Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings and Saturday matinee. The cast:

Ghost	D. W Waller	Polonius	D. C. Anderson
King	T. Hamilton	Gravedigger	C. Peters
Laertes	W. E. Sheridan	Queen	Fanny Morant

Edwin Booth acted Hamlet 10 and every evening except Saturday, when Emma Waller continued with Meg Merrilies 10, 17, 24, Feb. 5, 12, 19. "A New Way to Pay Old Debts," with Booth as Sir Giles Overreach, March 21, 22, 23. "The Lady of Lyons" 24, 25, and matinee 26. "Macbeth" 28, with Booth as the Thane. This continued the bill until April 14, when "The Lady of Lyons" was revived for three evenings, and "Macbeth" for the matinee 16. "Everybody's Friend" April 18, with John S. This play was announced as "A Widow Hunt," but it was an adaptation of "Everybody's Friend."

"Toodles" was acted the same night. "The School of Reform" May 9, with Clarke as Bob Tyke; also a farce by Brougham, entitled "Among the Breakers;" "Fox and Goose" and the nautical farce, "Lost Ashore," 16. J. H. McVicker opened May 30 in "Taking the Chances." June 13 the theatre was closed, and 14 "The Huguenot Captain," in which Ada Clifton reappeared on the stage as the Duchess, when Bella Pateman made her first appearance at this theatre as Juniata. The season closed July 4 with this play.

Jefferson reappeared Aug. 22, 1870, in "Rip Van Winkle." Edwin Booth followed Jan. 9, 1871, in "Richelieu," with Lawrence P. Barrett as De Mauprat, Bella Pateman as Julie. Booth played at the Saturday matinees, Barrett was the star at night. March 6, "Much Ado About Nothing," with Mrs. Pateman as Beatrice, Booth as Benedict, Barrett as Don Pedro, Robert Pateman as Verges, J. H. McVicker as Dogberry and Miss Selden as Hero. "Othello" March 20 and during the week, Booth and Barrett alternating the roles of the Moor and Iago. Blanche De Bar was the Desdemona. April 3, "The Fool's Revenge;" 17, Richelieu;" 25, "The Winter's Tale;" June 5, "The Man of Airlie," by G. W. Wills, dramatized for Herman Vezin, but bought by Mr. Barrett, was first acted. Lotta commenced a Summer season Aug. 14 in "Little Nell." John T. Raymond, D. C. Anderson, John W. Norton, John Wilson, Robert Pateman, A. W. Fenno, Nelson Decker, Charles Rosene, T. F. Brennen, Marius Turck, Henry Hogan, F. C. Richardson, John Taylor, Mary Wells, Marion Andrews, McDonall, Ellen Livingston, Mary Loduski Young, Burgess, Ross and Whitlock were in the company. John T. Raymond appeared during Lotta's engagement only.

The regular season opened Sept. 25 with Charlotte Cushman as Queen Katharine, in "Henry VIII," Wm. Creswick as Wolsey. Oct. 23, "Macbeth," with Creswick as Macbeth, Waller as Macduff. There was not a single redeeming trait about Creswick's performance. He lacked magnetic power and force, nor was he easy or graceful in gesture. "Guy Mannering" was the next production, with Cushman as Meg Merrilies; David Anderson, Dominie Sampson; Aug. Fenno, Dandie Dinmont. Charlotte Cushman's engagement, which was highly remunerative, terminated Nov. 4. John E. Owens followed Nov. 6 as Caleb Plummer in "The Cricket on the Hearth;" Mary Wells as Tillie Slowboy; W. Pateman as Tackleton. "Solon Shingle" was the next production. "Hamlet" was acted Dec. 4; F. C. Bangs as Laertes; D. W. Waller as the Ghost; Mrs. Pateman, Ophelia. "Julius Cæsar" was produced Christmas. Marcus Brutus, Edwin Booth; Caius Cassius, Lawrence P. Barrett; Marc Antony, Frank Cannon Bangs; Casca, James Stark; Octavius Cæsar, Wm. H. Norton; Wife of Brutus, Bella Pateman; Calphurnia, Miss Selden; Cæsar, D. W. Waller. Lawrence Barrett retired from the cast Feb. 17. Edwin Booth appeared as Cassius to Creswick's Brutus, Feb. 19, 1872, in 'Julius Cæsar," elaborately produced, and was the only notable revival of the season, which closed June 29. A more magnificent setting no piece ever received in New York, and, it is fair to presume, in the world. The scenery was not simply gorgeous—it was scrupulously correct. The noble simplicity of Roman elegance was faithfully reproduced. One was transported as if by magic to those scenes of ancient grandeur when liberty was fought for and for centuries maintained. The Roman Senate and the Forum where Antony delivers his oration over the dead body of Cæsar, were the finest acts of the piece. I have never seen so many accurate stage pictures. Each was a reflex of the epoch upon which the action of the play is founded. The dresses were models of the period. Mr. Booth was excellent as Brutus. His acting thrilled all hearers. In the assassination scene, and when visited by the ghost of Cæsar, his work was of the most intense nature. Mr. Barrett's Cassius was a masterpiece of acting.

The two per cent. tax upon the gross receipts of all places of amusement was repealed July 14, 1872, and the act took effect Oct. 1. This tax had ever been onerous and burdensome upon the managers, and was unjust, because it often compelled them to pay a tax upon their losses, notwithstanding which it was complied with, and, after a time, was used for advertising purposes. About the fifth of every month the daily and weekly dramatic newspapers published the gross receipts of places of amusement, as it was an easy thing to go to the several revenue collectors' offices and there find the returns recorded. Some managers saw that by the payment of a comparatively small sum they could get the credit with the public at large of doing an enormous business, and, so long as their receipts did not fall below their actual expenses, this was indulged in to a great extent. Another reason beyond their mere gratification prompted this course, which was to prevent parties engaged in the same business from learning the precise state of their affairs. As the error was on the liberal side, and the law more than complied with, and the treasury of the Nation enriched, of course the officials did not object. The gentlemen who effected the repeal of this law were J. H. McVicker, of Chicago, Ill.; William E. Spalding, of Washington, D. C., and Charles Gayler. They visited Washington, and, by repeated personal interviews and arguments with the Hon. Mr. Schenk, the chairman of the committee to whom the tax bill was referred, accomplished this much desired result.

The season of 1872-3 commenced Aug. 19, 1872, with "The Bells," James W. Wallack Jr. as Mathias. Mr. and Mrs. Dion Boucicault made their reappearance on the American stage Sept. 23, in "Arrah Na Pogue." Shiel Barry and C. Alexander also made their American debut. Adelaide Neilson made her American debut Nov. 18, as Juliet, in "Romeo and Juliet," James W. Wallack Jr. as Mercutio, Joseph Wheelock as Romeo. She continued to act Juliet until Dec. 5, when she appeared as Rosalind to Wallack's Jaques, and Wheelock as Rolando. This bill was repeated until matinee 14, when she closed with "The Lady of Lyons."

Helen Temple made her first appearance in this city Dec. 16, acting Joan of Arc in "The Lilly of France." James W. Wallack Jr. appeared 23 as Henry Dunbar in the play of that name.

Edwin Booth made his first appearance 30 (for the first time in seven months) as Richard III. He acted Lucius Junus Brutus in "Brutus" Jan. 20, 1873, for the first time in six years; matinee 25, "Much Ado About Nothing," and he closed Feb. 1.

The Florences opened 3 in "The Ticket of Leave Man," and acted it until March 3, when "No Thoroughfare" was played and continued for two weeks.

Dion Boucicault commenced 17 in "Daddy O'Dowd" produced for the first time on any stage. Shiel Barry, Robert and Bella Pateman, Mary Wells, Geo. Becks, Mary Loduski Young, and Joseph Wheelock were in the cast. "Arrah Na Pogue" was acted April 21. Mr. Boucicault closed May 10.

Adelaide Neilson reappeared May 12 in "Amy Robsart," Frank Bangs as Leicester. "As You Like It" June 14, when Neilson closed. "A Regular Fix" was also played, with E. A. Sothern as Hugh De Brass. Frank Roche (first appearance at this theatre) acted Orlando.

James W. Wallack Jr. died in a sleeping car May 24, 1873, while en route to New York from Aiken, S. C., where he had been for several weeks for the benefit of his health. J. W. Wallack's first appearance in this city was at the old National Theatre (Leonard and Church Streets) in 1839, as Fag in "The Rivals." Leontes in "A Winter's Tale" and Leon in "The Iron Mask" were his most effective representations. He possessed a manly person and expressive face.

Edwin Booth's management of this theatre terminated June 9, 1873, and he rented it for the following season to his elder brother, J. B. Booth Jr.

During the Summer season a new stage was put in, and the complicated machinery for working the scenery and machinery was abandoned. Opened for the season Sept. 1, 1873. D. W. Waller, stage manager. The company included Mrs. J. B. Booth, Bella Pateman, Mary Wells, Rachel Noah, Mrs. H. A. Weaver, Affie Weaver, the Misses Howard, Davidson, Burgess, Flohr, Naylor, Deuel and Whitlock; J. B. TO BE CONTINUED.

— Manager Wilkison and Alex. Salvini were at Rome last week. They sail for home Aug. 6, and before doing so will visit Pisa, Monte Catini, Aix-les-Bains and Paris. Inducements have been made for Mr. Salvini to appear in the native drama at the principal capitals, and the encouragement given to the scheme by Salvini pere has induced Mr. Wilkison to consider the matter seriously. New costumes are being made for "Don Cæsar," "The Three Guardsmen" and "Cavalleria Rusticana."

— Maud Clitherow made her American debut at the West End Amusement Hall, Long Branch, with Walter Granville, in Ernest Warren's comedietta, "Nettle," on July 22, the occasion being the Sick Baby Fund benefit.

WORLD OF PLAYERS:

— Arthur Lloyd, the noted English comic vocalist, is to visit America on a starring tour season after next. M. Kyle, who will manage him, is already in this city, arranging the details. Mr. Lloyd will be accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Annie King-Lloyd (a daughter of the famous English tragedian, T. C. King), and his son, Harry King-Lloyd. They will also bring over several English comedians, and will tour in Mr. Lloyd's own farcical comedy, "Nobs," which he has acted in England very successfully. Mr. Lloyd is the son of the veteran Scotch comedian, H. F. Lloyd, and is the author of many popular songs, among them "Pretty Lips," "Signor McStinger," "For Goodness Sake, Don't Say I Told You," etc.

— Hattie E. Price, whose death we recorded last week, was thirty-eight years of age. Twenty years ago she was married to Theodore F. Price, who had been a successful lecturer and humorist. She possessed a fine soprano voice, and shortly after her marriage she and her husband went on the stage, playing in the West. Eight years ago Mr. and Mrs. Price were members of the Hess Opera Co., with which company they went to Mexico. She sang several of the leading roles successfully. When "The Old Homestead" road company was first organized, Mr. and Mrs. Price were engaged for it, and they had continued with the company up to the close of last season. Mrs. Price had, at different times, played every female role in the piece, except Aunt Tildy. Last season she played Mrs. Murdock, and sang the lullaby. She was a devoted wife and an amiable woman, whose friendship was prized by many. She leaves a daughter, who is attending the seminary at Pennington, N. J. The burial took place July 27, in the Actors' Fund plot, in Evergreens Cemetery.

— Florence Gerald's Summer season with the Binghamton Stock closed July 30, and she returned to New York.

— Charles Barnard and Ben Teal are at work on a local domestic drama for Abbott & Teal. The play is to be American in character and tone.

— John McKever, the treasurer of Palmer's Theatre, this city, has invested in property at Rutherford, N. J., and has installed his wife and children there.

— Manager J. H. McVicker and his wife are sojourning in the White Mountains.

— John P. Smith will open his tour with "Uncle Tom's Cabin," at the Boston Theatre, Aug. 15. He has a clever little child of only five years, who plays Eva, and he will introduce in the play a number of features that are new to it.

— Arthur Leverson, the comedian, better known as Alf. C. Wheelan, is suing for a divorce from his wife, Katie. They were married on June 1, 1876, and separated five years ago.

— May Gallagher has been released from her engagement with "The White Squadron," and Mrs. A. Y. Pearson has taken her place.

— Business Manager Alfred F. Wands, with A. W. Fremont's Co., has been enjoying a fishing excursion on the Fox River. Mr. Fremont's tour begins the latter part of this month.

— Eben Plympton and four companions had a narrow escape from drowning while sailing on Silver Lake, at Plympton, Mass., Aug. 2. Their boat upset, and Mr. Plympton, who was heavily clad, had hard work reaching the shore, half a mile away. Had it not been for the aid of Edward Craven, son of John T. Craven, he would undoubtedly have been drowned.

— Stuart Robson will sail for home Aug. 17. Mrs. Robson (May Waldron) presented her husband with a son and heir recently. The little fellow will be called David Thornton Robson.

— Esther Lyon, who played an ingenue part in "Shenandoah," and Oscar Eagle, who was the Col. Prescott of the same play, were married Aug. 3, at the home of the bride, No. 333 West One Hundred and Seventeenth Street, this city. The bridegroom will play a leading part in "The White Squadron," which is now being rehearsed at the Fourteenth Street Theatre.

— Sig. Tagliapietra has signed with P. S. Gilmore to sing for twenty-six weeks during Mr. Gilmore's Columbus tour, which will begin in October.

— Eugene Tompkins produces at the Boston Theatre, early in November, a grand old English pantomime, in a manner worthy of that theatre and its management. Mr. Tompkins, while in Europe, bought many dresses and secured a number of specialty people. Sig. Biancifion, the male dancer, appears in this production, and not "The Black Crook," as has been stated in some of the papers. Sig. Guerra is the male dancer for the "Crook," engaged at Milan.

— Maj. J. A. McGuire, stage manager of "The Fall of Paris," at Buffalo, N. Y., writes that he closed a successful season in that city, and contemplates touring, giving broadsword exhibitions and horsemanship till "The Seige of Paris" takes the road again.

— The Delphian Quartet have signed with the "Reprieved" Co. They are resting at a resort on the York River, Va., and are having a good time boating, fishing and bathing.

— Charles A. Morgan, of "The Old Homestead" Co., is spending the Summer at Peak's Island, Me.

— Criptie and John W. Palmoni are summering at Hill Crest Cottage, Great Neck. Criptie Palmoni has been re-engaged for the Girard Avenue Theatre stock, and John W. Palmoni will go ahead of "The Struggle of Life."

— Richard Pitrot will shortly undertake a tour of Italy with "A Dark Secret" Co. The play has been translated into Italian, and it is expected that the water scene will considerably astonish the natives.

— Manager Augustus Pitou returns to this city from his Summer home on Lake Simcoe, in Canada, Aug. 10, to prepare his companies for the road.

The tomb and adjacent grounds are leased by the Franciscan monks, who pay 1,000 lire per year, and derive a revenue from the vegetable gardens and the one lire charged each visitor as an entrance fee. They say that Napoleon I removed the cover of the tomb, and had it placed at Monaco, Fr., but the bones no one seems to know about. Romeo lies entombed at Mantua, not far from her. We also visited the house where Juliet lived. It is a dilapidated four or five story stone house, part of a solid row in the Via Capella. It is a tenement now for poor families, who were inclined to smile at our enthusiasm over the 3x14 balcony where Romeo climbed to his lady love over 300 years ago. They take little note of that ill starred youth. The house is distinguished only by a stone tablet, engraved with words setting forth that it was the home of the Capulets, etc. We visited the palace of Napoleon I at the Avena (ruins), similar to the Colliseumm—a once magnificent structure, which accommodated 50,000 people, and the tombs of Verona's nobility. We saw the Teatro Salvini, at Florence, also his palazzo."

VARIETY & MINSTRELSY

HARRY MORRIS has all the people engaged for the May Howard Co., and rehearsals will begin this month. The company open at Waldmann's Opera House, Newark, N. J., Sept. 5. Mr. Morris will have handsome costumes, magnificent scenery and clever specialists. The costumes are furnished by the management, and will be entirely of satin. There is no reason why this show should not be among the leading money making attractions this season. There is no burlesque woman in the business who is a bigger drawing attraction than May Howard, and with her name to head the list, and Harry Morris as the comedian, an excellent performance should be given. The company: The Two Franks, Billy Courtright, Washburn Sisters, James Hallie, Vede Mansfield, Al. Belman, Hanley and Jarvis, Mlle. Natta, Franc Madigan, Fannie De Costa, Connie Constantine, Mabel Chartiers, Margie Mortimer, Gertie Keith, Ada Wray, Kitty May Charles, Sisters Carleton, Rosa May, Ruth Deshon, Marguerite Kingston, Emma Lawrence, John Stromberg, musical director, and James Woods, advance.

The bicycle race was between Chrissie Sheridan, first; Estelle Wellington, second, and Mildred Rouclere and Sadie Bernstein a tie for third place. A swimming match was arranged between Gus Hill, Phil Sheridan and Harry Rouclere. It had to be postponed, as Harry Rouclere cut his foot severely by stepping on a piece of glass. W. S. CLEVELAND'S NEW ALL UNITED MINSTRELS began their regular tour last week, at the Boston Mass., Theatre, and the performance seems to have enthused the Hub audiences. There were plaudits of welcome when the curtain went up and discovered the familiar ebony crescent, with Edward Howard, the interlocutor, in the centre. On the ends were M. Martin, James Dalton, John Talbert, Frank Russell, Joseph Sparks, Thomas Dalton, Thomas Haley and Frank Bartlett. The opening number was a potpourri of national airs, which did excellently as a "starter," and was participated in by B. S. Carnes, basso; Al. Wilson and D. W. Davis, baritones; Ernest Sinclair, alto; W. E. Nankivelle, Harry J. Howard, Fred Salcombe, tenors; Fred Andrews, soprano, and C. W. Hindley's orchestra, including Steven Grubbs, Frank Knapp, Archie Cony, Otto Ockerman, Edward Frauzen, James Shulz, Samuel Fisher, Henry Klepper, Harl Coffey, and the minstrel Paderewski, Arthur Heft. The appearance of the inimitable Charles Kenna and William Smith, was a feature of the succeeding part, and they both made a big hit, McKenna's topical song, "Deadontothetown," was clever, and contained a number of witty local references. Fred Salcombe's "Sweetheart When a Boy," D. W. Davis' "The Message," and Harry J. Howard's "Sweet Kate Moore" and "A Broken Home," were each deserving of the applause they evoked. John Queen and Barney Fagan were given a hearty welcome, and the former's "Everyoldthing," and the latter's "Cake Walk," and other original creations, were encored again and again. The dancing by Barney Fagan was particularly effective. W. E. Nankivelle made a pleasing impression with "Melodies of the Past," and received a recall. It is doubtful if there has ever been a more graceful and finished acrobatic performance than that given by Ouda, the gymnast. His feats were difficult and thrilling, and yet in perfect accord with the rest of the entertainment. The audience was quick to appreciate it, too. The Daltons, James and Thomas, contributed several eccentric negro sketches with dances, and then came a burlesque of a boxing match between "John L. Sullivan" and "Bob Fitzsimmons," in which two bright boys were the principals. Then came Cyrene. In a fleecy, fluttering cloud of lavender lace, with beauty roses on her breast, and diamonds rivalling in brilliancy her flaming black eyes, the dancer floated down to the footlights to receive the applause of the big audience. For fifteen minutes she wound and glided in sinuous curves across the big stage, her dainty feet one moment on the floor, another high above her head in the air. She looked pretty and charming, and was all vivacity and grace. "The Four Emperors of Music, Ed. Howard, Charles Kenna, Frank Russell and Jack Talbert, were next on the programme, with vocal and instrumental selections that were an entertainment in themselves. The eccentricities of the Big Four, Smith, Martin, Haley and Sparks, were next in order. The performance closed with the equilibristic marvels of Hilton.

SIEGFRIED CRONHEIM was recently pardoned out of the Snake Hill, N. J., Penitentiary, where he had been sentenced for six months for keeping a disorderly house at his variety theatre, Hoboken. On Aug. 4 he had a quarrel with Charles Holdmacher, a waiter, and struck him with a brass tray because the waiter demanded forty cents he said was due him. A free fight followed. The waiter caused Mr. Cronheim's arrest, and Mr. Cronheim did the same for the waiter. Justice Rusch held both for examination.

NEW YORK CITY.

Last Week's Doings.—There were brighter days and nights for the town's playhouses last week. Fanned by refreshing breezes and stimulated into renewed activity, the metropolitan army of theatregoers awoke from their long lethargy, and in the box offices there were heard once more the chink of coin and the rustle of bills—gratifying signs that the new season is upon us.....The UNION SQUARE, first to start the fresh era, had no reason to complain of the business which was captured by Charles A. Gardner in "Fatherland." The star made an honest and valuable success; his company won high praise, and the piece was handsomely staged. Under these auspicious circumstances, Managers Greenwall & Pearson, the new lessees of the Union Square, may well be congratulated upon their season's inaugural.....The continued attractions were: "The Mascot," by the Dixey Opera Co., at PALMER'S; "Sinbad," by David Henderson's Co., at the GARDEN; "A Trip to Chinatown," at HOYT'S MADISON SQUARE; "The Vice Admiral," at the CASINO, and variety at MINER'S BOWERY and TONY PASTOR'S. In "The Mascot," Grace Harper, of Cincinnati, made her local debut night of Aug. 1, playing Guiseppe, while Kate Uart took Hilda Hollins' place as Frederic, Miss Hollins going on a vacation. "Sinbad" prospered notably at the Garden.....The two roof gardens and MADISON SQUARE GARDEN offered no novelties of note. The roof garden crowds were large, as usual.....All the other regular theatres in town were with dark doors.....The museum season started in earnest 1, DORIS' throwing back its doors, and thus joining WORTH'S, which has not closed all Summer. HUBER'S fell into line 8, as elsewhere noted in detail. .....The THALIA reopened Friday night, 5, for Hebrew performances. Herman Schoenberg, business manager of the Thalia, was arraigned before Justice McMahon at the Tombs 6, charged with giving a theatrical performance without a license. He was held in $300 bail for examination 3. His wife signed the bond.

SINCE Sylvester F. Wilson, who was the manager of a female baseball nine, was convicted last October of abducting Libbie Sunderland, he has been in the Tombs on a stay granted by Judge Lawrence, and pending his appeal to the General Term. His sentence was five years in prison and a fine of $1,000, and his bail was fixed at $10,000. Mr. Wilson has been unable to obtain a bondsman. Sarah McDannold offered to furnish bail for him Aug. 2. She said she owns an equity of $19,000 in forty-three lots and four frame houses at Congers, Rockland County. District Attorney Nicoll refused to accept her bail, because her property was out of the city. She went before Judge Martine with her lawyer, and asked him to make an order compelling the District Attorney to accept her bond. Judge Martine refused, and she went to the Supreme Court with the same application. Decision was reserved.

THE Fall and Winter season of the Star Theatre will begin Aug. 22, when Katie Emmett will produce, for the first time in this city, her new DORIS' EIGHTH AVENUE MUSEUM.—Crowded houses ruled here last week, and Manager Doris has no cause to complain of the amount of patronage during the opening week. The wonderfully improve appearance of the place caused much favorable comment, and the many appliances added during the closing, to insure the comfort of its visitors, attracted the attention of all those who appreciate a liberal management. In Curio Hall No. 1, for this week, are Zuluma's den of trained alligators, Miss Wosner, Albino; Mme. Johnson, tall woman; Prof. Schlam, wizard, and German Rose, Lilliputian songstress. In Curio Hall No. 2 are Mathews' caprine performers, Prof. Karl's California gold mine, the Hungarian Orchestra and thousands of permanent museum attractions. Curio Halls Nos. 3 and 4 contain the Punch and Judy and other puppet shows, and are always entertaining places for the young and old. In Theatre No. 1, Edith Crolius and a competent company are playing "The Brother's Oath," and Theatre No. 2 has the following vaudevillers for this week: Pacey and Hanley, Harry Clayton, Sam Webster and Gordon and Mortimer.

MANAGER HENRY GREENWALL has arranged to produce at the Union Square Aug. 22, a play by Odie P. Reid, entitled "A Kentucky Colonel." Frederic Bryton and McKee Rankin have been engaged for the cast for four weeks, as have Mrs. Sidney Drew and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Robinson.

FLORA FINLAYSON, the contralto, made her first appearance at the Madison Square Roof Garden Sunday night, Aug. 7. Damrosch's Orchestra played in the Amphitheatre, while Bernstein's musicians held orth on the roof.

KOSTER & BIAL'S.—"A Village Wedding," an adaptation of the French opera bouffe, "Noce Villageoise," which had considerable success at Les Ambassadeurs, Paris, was produced for the first time in this country on Monday night, Aug. 8 Mons. Dufour, Mlle. Hartley, Madge Lessing and Christine Blessing played the chief roles very creditably. Most of the music was bright and catchy, and the costumes were quite pretty. The complete cast: Joseph Cornu, Mons. Dufour; Jolicolur, Madge Lessing; Denicheux, James I. Kelly; Boulafoin, Christine Blessing; Lolette, Dorothy Denning; Clairette, Mlle. Hartley; Mme. Gregoire, Dolly Clark; Marron, Irene Rice; Louisette, Maud Harvey; Marguerite, Ray Vernon; Susanne, Marie Carr. Other features on the programme included principally the Brothers Borani, acrobats, and Nada Reyval, who has been styled Queen of Electricity. On 15 Amann, who is reported to be one of the best mimics in Europe, will make his American debut here. Press Agent C. B. Cline has returned from his vacation and is once again athis post.

MANAGER HERMAN SCHOENBERG, of the Thalia Theatre, who was arrested Aug. 5, on a charge of giving a theatrical performance without a license, was discharged in the Tombs Police Court 8. It was proven that his application for a license had been granted, and that it merely needed Mayor Grant's signature to put him within the pale of the law. The Mayor, however, was unexpectedly detained from his office, and so Manager Schoenberg had to do without a license, but, having sold over a thousand tickets, he says, he was forced to keep open.

AUG. DALY has arranged with Richard Mansfield to appear at Daly's Theatre Sept. 12 next, for a brief season. Mr. Mansfield will first be seen in Joseph Hatton's adaptation of "The Scarlet Letter," and this will be followed by a version of Boucicault's "Grimaldi" and "The First Night." Mr. Mansfield may also be seen in some of his old plays. Beatrice Cameron, Arthur Forrest, W. J. Ferguson, D. H. Harkins, Mrs. J. W. Brutone and all of Mr. Mansfield's well known company will be in the cast. "The Scarlet Letter" is in four acts, with a scene to each act.

TONY PASTOR'S THEATRE.—This week's programme may somewhat lack in new faces, but it must be admitted that all the performers are clever, and they cannot visit us too often. A good sized house greeted them kindly Aug. 8. Here is the list: C. W. Williams, Orlando Sisters, Petrie and Elsie, John H. W. Byrne, Capitola Forrest, O'Brien and Carroll, Allen and Rankin, James F. Hoey, Bonnie Thornton and the Ali Bros. Next week: John and James Russell, Ross and Fenton, Melville and Stetson, John E. Drew, Marion and Post, the Morphets, Lavman, Jessie K. Giles, Jas. E. Hoey and Bonnie Thornton.

Their names: Crosby and Wray, Myrtle Tressider, Howe and Seymour, Frank O'Brien, Wood Sisters, Quigg and Smith, Wilson and Brevard, and Joe Hardman. The house will be closed from 13 to 20. On the latter date the Busy Bees' Burlesque and Specialty Co. will inaugurate their first tour.

THREE VAUDEVILLE REOPENINGS are set down for Saturday night, Aug. 20, viz.: The London, with Sam T. Jack's Creole Burlesque Co., who then open their tour; Miner's Bowery, with the Busy Bees Co., who then play their first date on the road, and Miner's Eighth Avenue, with Robert Manchester's "Night Owls"—their opening date.

THE BIJOU'S season will open Sept. 5, with the first New York performance of "12 P. M.," by Jennie Yeamans and her new company.

FIFTH AVENUE THEATRE.—H. C. Miner's handsome new playhouse inaugurated its second regular season on Monday night, Aug. 8, when a really brilliant audience saw the first New York production of "Settled Out of Court," by that particular one of Charles Frohman's troupes distinguished as Charles Frohman's Comedians. The comedy is in three acts, and is a free adaptation, by William H. Gillette, of Alexandre Bisson's risque French farce, "La Famille du Pont Biquet," which was originally acted Jan. 12, 1892, at the Paris, Fr., Vaudeville, and there had a run of fair duration. Mr. Gillette's form of it was first done night of 1, at Washington, D. C. The verdict there expressed was one of keen disappointment, and that verdict was instantly endorsed by the Fifth Avenue's very kindly audience. The plot, as Mr. Gillette has subdued it into polite English, we shall present in full in a later issue. The dialogue is at times crisp, but the humor is not yet entirely refined. Indeed, it is at some moments entirely too suggestive. One thing that militated greatly against the enjoyment and success of the piece was the insufferable torridity of Mr. Miner's playhouse. The caloric was frightful. And another disadvantage was the excessively fatiguing talk of acts one and two. There must be a great deal of blue pencilling done with Mr. Gillette's work before it will really enjoy a true and lasting metropolitan triumph. Boil it down, Mr. Gillette, and do not be alarmed lest you condense it too briefly. The first act was so long drawn out that it made one feverish to anticipate the curtain drop; and scarcely any member of the cast had a word to say, except Joseph Holland. As Mark Harriman, Mr. Holland was a heroic success. His heroism was due entirely to the fact that he had mastered the lines of the longest role, probably, that any actor has been cast for in recent years. He delivered them, too, with so much fervor and accuracy that it was a constant source of amazement to the handsome audience of typical first nighters that graced Mr. Miner's auditorium. Yet there were other players in the cast beside Mr. Holland. M. A. Kennedy, a sterling comedian, played a corpulent magistrate delightfully. He had to assume deafness at times, but he did so artistically. To Charles S. Abbe, a one time utility man at the Boston Museum must also be accredited that same qualification of being thoroughly artistic. To the ladies of Mr. Frohman's company are due praise and the kindliest of words. Georgie Drew Barrymore never looked handsomer in her life, nor had she ever gowned herself more exquisitely. Agnes Miller, dainty always, was very captivating as Alice Plunkett. Minnie Tittell, in the role of Katherine O'Donovan, did a marvelously clever bit of character work. Her brogue was excruciating. The scenery was acceptable. We give the full cast: Mark Harriman, Joseph Holland; Lawrence Taft, William Faversham; Joseph Plunkett, M. A. Kennedy; Michael Veehorn, T. C. Valentine; Charles Augustine Daglaterre, Chas. A. Abbe; Mr. Spencer, Joseph Humphreys; Sedgwick, Chas. T. Greene; Lucretia Plunket, Georgie Drew Barrymore; Matilda Harriman, Evelyn Campbell; Alice Plunkett, Agnes Miller; Mrs. Chatfield, Margaret Craven; Mrs. Dutelle, Ida Curry; Katherine O'Donovan, Minnie Tittell. The Frohman company is under the management of Harry Rockwood. The executive staff at this theatre for the ensuing season is as follows: H. C. Miner, sole proprietor and manager; John W. Hamilton, business manager; E. D. Miner, assistant business manager; Maurice Samuelson, treasurer; A. J. Dunbar, assistant treasurer; Thomas Hindley, leader of orchestra; P. J. McDonald, master machinist; Charles Norman, master of properties; Smith Acker, electrician; G. Muller, advertising agent. The engagement of "Settled out of Court" is to extend to Sept. 19.

IN HARLEM.—Hammerstein's Columbus opens Saturday night, Aug. 13, with "The House on the Marsh." The Harlem Opera House will start its season 22. The Olympic opens 27, with the Henry Burlesque Co. No plans have yet been formed for the Harlem Theatre's future. The Harlem Museum will throw back its doors 20. It has been entirely redecorated, and now has the finest museum entrance in this city. At the Mammoth Pavilion this week: The Pendys, Van Osten and Clark, Fanny Lewis, Foster and Hughes, John J. Sheehan, Duke Morosco and Miss Warner. Business night of 8 was very big.

HUBER'S PALACE MUSEUM.—The fifth regular season of this popular and palatial place of amusement began most auspiciously on Monday, Aug. 8. The doors had been shut for seven weeks, during which time the house underwent quite a transformation. Nothing was left undone by Manager Huber to make his house bear out its title in every particular. Inside and outside a palatial air prevailed. Despite the extreme heat prevalent on the inaugural day a vast concourse of sightseers poured through the portals of the Palace from early forenoon till well along toward midnight. Each one came eager and expectant for a pleasurable time, and it is perfectly safe to say that all went away thoroughly satisfied and contented. The house was a delight to the eye. Rich wood, forming the facade, had been polished like unto a newly varnished boot, while fine French mirrors on either side of the spacious lobby reflected an interior of regal magnificence. The curio departments had been brightened with warm colors and soft, harmonious hangings. An entirely new arrangement of the hundreds of cases, containing inanimate curios and interesting relics, was among the many agreeable changes effected. On the first floor of the annex a large retiring room for ladies has been built. It is furnished in splendid style, and fitted with all modern improvements for the comfort and accommodation of the gentler sex. To enumerate the thousand and one objects on exhibition in the three immense halls and which line the byways throughout the huge house, would fill the pages of a small encyclopædia. They can only be referred to here in a general way. There are relics and curios from every quarter of the globe, from the sea, from the air and from goodness knows where, yet all are interesting and instructive. The bill for the opening week was fully in accord with the splendor of the establishment. The chief features in the curio halls were Shepaboh's Troupe of Arabs, who give true and thrilling representations of Arabian sports and customs; Orsona, wire haired man; Mlle. Olga, a Grecian beauty; Texas Dick and Mexican May, musicians from the prairies; Emelia Hill, fat woman; Wild Eagle Bill, Eline, Luke Rivers, Walter Wentworth and others. The engagement of Shepaboh's Arabs marks their first appearance in this country, and they bid fair to create a sensation. The auditorium came in for its share of refurnishing and redecoration, and it is now a cheerful place, indeed. The inaugural stage bill comprised Emma Gracie, singer; Luke Rivers, comedian; Quinn and Forbes, sketch team; Harry Barret, juggler; the Paynes, musicians; T. J. Heffron, one legged dancer, and Crimmins and Taylor in a new specialty. Manager Huber has selected the following efficient and experienced people for his business staff: J. H. Anderson, business manager; E. G. Johnson, general superintendent; August Marx, treasurer; A. R. Wilson, advertising agent; Emilio D'Onofrio, musical director; Dr. D. M. Lindsay, lecturer. No change will be made in the policy of the house.

W. J. FLEMING'S "Around the World in Eighty Days" Co. have been secured as the opening attraction at Niblo's Garden Saturday night, Aug. 27, under the new management of Alex. Comstock. This will also be the opening of Mr. Fleming's tour, and that actor's first appearance at that theatre in fifteen years. Mr. Fleming will have a new company and many special features of interest.

VARIETY & MINSTRELSY

LUCIER'S CONSOLIDATED MINSTRELS opened their sixth regular season at Provincetown, Mass., Aug. 2, under very auspicious circumstances. The "S. R. O." sign was up before eight o'clock, and many were turned away. When the curtain rose on the first part exclamations of surprise, and then an outburst of applause, greeted the ears of the performers discovered. The stage was beautifully draped in plush and satin, and the costumes, representing the court dress of Louis XIV, were extremely rich and gorgeous. J. R. Lucier, the blind interlocutor, occupied the throne, and presided over the festivities. The ends were occupied by eight comedians, and, after the opening operatic chorus, the popular fun makers, Harry Budworth and Harry Ward, were introduced. The ballads, by Chas. Lucier, M. Kale and Fred Anderton, called for encores, and Harry Budworth's "Hot Stuff" and Harry Ward's "Angel" parody "went big." The olio was opened by Eddie La Barre, who captured the audience with his grotesque act, "Left Alone." Mons. Forber introduced his slack wire juggling, and then came the Luciers, assisted by Harry Barton, in a new musical act. Their unique instruments and the rendition of selections received continuous plaudits. Scott, the frog man, astonished the natives next, and was followed by "The Festival of Terpischore," introducing the march of the "Black Zouaves," a military novelty of magnificent splendor, arranged by Harry Ward, who gave an exhibition of skill with rifle and bayonet. The big eight clog came next, participated in by Higgins Bros., La Barre, Geo. Mullen, Fries Bros., John Bowen and Pat Malia. Then droll Harry Budworth made his appearance, and roars of laughter, long and loud, greeted his irresistible sayings and parodies. Billy Fries introduced his tambourine spinning, and the show closed with the acrobatic act of the La Fayettes, a quartet of European grotesques, imported for this special purpose. Straffin & Luciers have every prospect for a splendid season, and business so far has beaten all their past records. The company includes thirty-five people, as follow: J. R. Lucier, C. N. Lucier, Fred D. Straffin, manager, R. Lucier Straffin, Harry Budworth, Harry Ward, Harry Barton, Mons Forber, Ed. La Barre, Geo. Mullen, Billy and Joe Higgins, Fred Anderton, M. Rale, Billy and Larry Fries, John Bowen, "Scott," Pat Malla, the Four La Fayettes, D. W. Clark, C. G. Thomas, Billy Fay, Frank Hitchcock, Chas. Potter, F. J. Palmer, P. H. Murphy, C. W. French, E. Petersen, Geo. Griswold, Ed. Smith, F. Hamlin, Dr. Geo. W. Huntley, agent, with two assistants.

BARLOW BROS.' MINSTRELS opened their eighth annual tour at Akron, O., Aug. 1, and at noon on the same day made their inaugural parade. There had been much promised, but it more than satisfied expectations. It was a very finely equipped parade, and left an impression that was strongly felt at the box office all day. The evening performance was greeted by an audience that packed the Academy of Music to the doors. Standing room was at a premium, and hundreds were turned away. The show in its entirety was fresh and catchy, each feature being loudly applauded and encores being unusually frequent. The stage setting, curtains and costumes were new and rich. The first part disclosed the fun makers and vocalists in the foreground, and the orchestra on the raised platform in the rear, under the direction of Prof. A. N. Wolff, arranged in costumes of light green silk plush, trimmed in lilac and gold satin. The singers—Robert Price, James Wasson, Harry Grassman, Harry Meyrick, Wm. Rogers and Master Edward Percy—were in blue plush, pearl and silver satin, and the ten end men—James and Billy Barlow, Matt and Low Diamond, Ed. and Fred Rowley, George Snyder, Ben Buckley, Harry Freeman and Lew Randall—wore red plush and gold, and kept the fun fast and furious. Will G. Mack, as director of amusements and interlocutor, was arrayed in a white satin knight costume, trimmed with gold and silver lace. This brilliant picture was masked in with draperies of old gold satin, with scarlet swags, edged with silk tassels, gracefully and artistically festooned. The decorations were very pretentious, and created considerable comment, as the colors were blended beautifully, and the contrast was striking, novel and picturesque. The performance through the first part was new and full of spirit, as it allowed the comedians full scope, while the vocalists sang several ballads of elevated character and more than ordinary merit. This was followed by an olio rich in variety. The second part opened with Harry Freeman, knockabout wonder; the Rowleys, in their unique dancing banjo act; Master Edward Percy, in his swell character songs; the Big Eight, neat song and dance, "Colored Society Swells," in which was displayed some very costly and elaborate wardrobes; Snyder, Buckley and Scofield, musical comedy trio; character song and dance, "Cinderella Jackson's Masquerade;" Ferry, the frog man, and the Rennellos, in their acrobatic and tumbling act. "Political Excitement" brought the performanee to a close. The entire entertainment throughout was received with demonstrations of pleasure, and Manager A. L. Dolson can certainly feel proud of the success he has had in organizing such a strong company.

WHEN the patrons of Waldmann's Opera House, Newark, N. J., enter the building on Aug. 20, on the opening of the season, they will be met with an agreeable surprise in the alterations that have taken place. The entire interior is being redecorated. The heavy colors that before prevailed will be replaced with light blue and gold throughout. The effect of this change will be particularly noticeable on the horseshoe of the gallery, while the ceiling will be made specially attractive in panel work of the predominant tints. The old sun light in the centre has been removed, and a thirty-six candle chandelier substituted. The four corner pieces, which were formerly scroll work ventilators, are to give place to four finely painted figures, while the proscenium and arch are to be repainted and the latter decorated with an appropriate centre medallion. New and rich drapings for the boxes have been purchased to correspond with the interior of the house. Nor have the stage appointments been neglected. A new drop curtain is already in position. It is a medallion picture of the Castle of Heidelburg, and is a fine specimen of the scenic painter's art. Nine new views of scenery have been put in, and these, with the new drapings, will make the stage settings as fine as in any theatre in the country. A new stage carpet has been procured. The dressing rooms are being remodeled and refurnished, and the barroom, down stairs, newly decorated. Manager Waldmann will return from Europe latter part of September.

DECKER BROS.' MINSTRELS, who played at the Richfield Summer Theatre Aug. 4, had a crowded house, and gave a good performance. At 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon, the company made a street parade, and were escorted to the Richfield Driving Park by Barnes & Vandyke (managers) of the theatre, where they were given seats in the grand stand, and furnished music during the afternoon for the bicycle races that were being held there.

They say that they will spare no expense in making their show one of the finest on the road. Business with the minstrels will be conducted on the same lines as with the circus. Everything throughout will be brand new, and the paper will be of the best.

HARRY KENNEDY, the well known ventriloquist and song writer, was a CLIPPER caller Aug. 8. He has entirely regained his health and voice, and seems to be in the pink of condition. Mr. Kennedy has written a new song, entitled "Molly and I and the Baby," which he thinks will exceed in popularity his famous "Empty Is the Cradle." He says that it is already being rehearsed by several comedy companies. Mr. Kennedy intends resuming the road this season.

THE death of Sig. Antonio Quaglieni, the well known equestrian and circus director, occurred recently at his private residence, at Brescia, Italy. That he sold, and went to England in 1856 with his family. In 1862 he again commenced as circus director at Cardiff. In 1870 he retired altogether and returned to Italy, with a pretty deep purse. His wife died some eight years ago. There are ten children living, all in the profession. Luigi, a younger son, seems to have been in favor, for the father placed him at the head of his establishment at the age of seven en, and took a lively interest in instructing him how to manage the same, even up to the time of his retirement from active life. The deceased spent the last twenty-two years of his life at Brescia.

WYBERT CLIVE, the well known English actor, author and manager, committed suicide July 17, at Dewsbury, Eng., by cutting his throat. The deceased was thirty-two years of age, and was the author of many dramas, the most successful of recent years being "The Conscript." An inquest was held, and from the evidence it appeared that the deceased had been actively engaged in dramatic authorship, but had been somewhat unsteady in his habits. Mrs. Clive said the deceased worked remarkably hard, and received a good income by means of royalties on his dramas He was completing two new pieces when the sad event took place.

JOHN B. WESTENDORF, well known to the circus and dramatic profession, died at his home, Oxford, Me., July 13, of typhoid fever. He was born at Bowling Green, Va., Nov. 2, 1846. He was a brother of Thos. P. Westendorf, the noted song writer, and of R. T. Westendorf, former manager of privileges with P. T. Barnum Shows. At an early age he entered the dramatic profession and traveled extensively. In 1861 he enlisted in the One Hundred and Twenty-seventh Illinois Volunteers, and served with honors until the close of the war. He was a Mason and a member of the G. A. R. He managed the advertising programme of the Barnum Show for his brother from 1876 to 1881. He also managed the Parlor Opera House, Bridgeport, Ct., for a number of seasons. For the past six years he had been on the road for a boot and shoe firm of Portland, Me. He left a wife and one child, a mother, two brothers and four sisters.

He was educated at the Charlemagne College, and while quite a youth produced some comedies and vaudevilles. Finally he tried legitimate drama, but not until after his marriage with the niece of M. Dennery. Among his plays are "An Evening at the Bastile," "Don Gusman, ou la Journee d'un Seducteur," "Le Roi de Cœur" and "The Queen's Dragoons." He also collaborated with M. He was confined in the hospital at Detroit for some weeks, and on recovering started for his home at Louisville, but on reaching Cincinnati he became worse, and was again taken to the hospital, where he died. Manager James Fennessy identified him. Mr. Hammond was with Whallen & Martell's Vaudeville Shows during the last two seasons, and had his headquarters at Louisville He was a member of Hoboken Lodge of Elks, No. 74, and his remains were taken charge of by No. 5 of Cincinnati. During a theatrical performance at Rueil, a town of about 8,000 inhabitants, in the Department of Seine et-Oise, Fr., July 25, an accident occurred by which, although no lives were lost, eighty of the audience were seriously injured. The seats occupied by those who had assembled to witness the performance, were arranged in tiers rising toward the rear. Shortly after they had been filled, an ominous cracking was heard, and in an instant they had fallen with a crash, carrying down with them 700 persons. When the seats collapsed piercing shrieks were heard from those who were entangled in the wreck and it was at first supposed that many were killed. For a time all was confusion, but through the efforts of a few who retained their presence of mind, aided by the police, who were called to the scene, order was restored, and the work of extricating the injured from the wreck was pushed forward. After all had been taken out the police began an investigation into the cause of the accident. They found that some person or persons had loosened the screws and bolts in the framework that supported the seats, rendering them unsafe and sure to fall when any considerable weight was put upon them. When the result of the police investigation became known the greatest indignation was expressed on all sides. An active search is being carried on for the perpetrators of the outrage.

ALMA STUART STANLEY is about to leave the English music hall stage—for a time, at any rate—in order to play on tour a principal part in "Pat," a musical comedy by George Roberts and Harry Monkhouse, which will go into the country under the latter's auspices.

AT LONDON, Aug. 2, the trial of the suit of Mr. Payne, the programme contractor at the Avenue Theatre, against Henry Arthur Jones, the dramatist, for breach of contract and libel, was decided. The suit was brought in consequence of the action of Mr. Jones, who, during his recent experience as manager of the Avenue, distributed programmes free, thus breaking the contract entered into with Mr. Payne and depriving the latter of the income from the sale of programmes. The Court decreed that the defendant should pay to Mr. Payne £20 damages for breach of contract and £25 damages for libel, in having stigmatized Mr. Payne's action in charging for programmes as a most outrageous and indefensible exhibition of a middleman's parasitic spirit. During the trial Mr. Jones was called to testify in his own behalf. He contended that his attack was made upon the fee system, and not upon Mr. Payne personally.

ONLY eight of the principal London theatres are now open, and that number will be reduced to six in a fortnight or so. The Gaiety, with burlesque, and the Court, with a triple bill, are doing very well. The Garrick closed Aug. 6. THE RING.

The Maori Redivivus.

A dispatch from Salt Lake City, Utah, dated July 31, relates the following regarding the stalwart wrestler and boxer who was brought from the antipodes by Jim Mace for the purpose of flaxing out the mighty John L. Sullivan: "Herbert Slade, the Maori, who for several years has been a ranchman in this vicinity, is now fleeing from the wrath of Bishop Sneazy, of the Mormon church. Sneazy, who is wealthy and influential in his community, resides at Mona, a small town about sixty miles from here. He has a beautiful daughter, who fell in love with Slade and bent a willing ear to his proposals of marriage. The bishop, however, would have none of the prize fighter and locked the girl in her room. Late last night Slade assisted the girl to escape, hurried her before a justice of the peace, and the couple then started toward the Pacific coast. Bishop Sneazy attempted to pursue the lovers, but they were too far in advance, and he has gone back to Mona to nurse his wrath."

PADDY SLAVIN has been installed as boniface of the Rose public house in Jermyn Street, London, Eng., "Pony" Moore becoming the Australian's security in $5,000. The puncher from the antipodes is now to be seen every night behind the bar, and as his better half was a barmaid before he married her, they should make a pretty good team, and no doubt the venture will prove as successful as Slavin's many friends hope that it will be. He is to have a complimentary benefit at the Trocadero Music Hall, on the evening of Aug. 15, and at the head of the committee having charge of the arrangements appears the name of the sporting baronet, Sir John Astley.

ALL EFFORTS to induce Jim Smith, the English counterfeit, to come to America and fight Joe Choynski for a purse offered by the Coney Island Athletic Club, have failed. Smith says that he will fight in England or nowhere. Judging from his past record, Jim don't know how to fight anywhere, and the Coney Island A. C. would be wasting money to hang up a purse for the Londoner to scrap for. His only chance not to get the worst of a fight is when he has a gang of heelers to force the traditional "win, tie or wrangle."

JACK DAVIS, of Texas, and Mike Flynn, from Colorado, fought fifty-one rounds to a draw, for a purse of $500, under the Queensberry rules, on the Arkansas side of the river, near Memphis, Tenn., on July 31. The men weigh 130lb each, and both were badly punished when darkness compelled a cessation of hostilities, the referee declaring the battle a draw, with the consent of the principals.

MARTIN COSTELLO, alias "Buffalo," and Alexander Greggains, of San Francisco, Cal., have been matched to fight with gloves before the Pacific Athletic Club, of 'Frisco, some time next month. In case Costello wins, he may be matched against Bob Fitzsimmons to fight before the Olympic Club, of New Orleans. Martin Murphy will be Greggains' principal trainer.

A MATCH has been entered into between Mike Mulroy, of the Brighton Athletic Club, of Brooklyn, and Frank Patterson. They are to fight within a month for a stake and purse, provided some club hangs up one of sufficient size; otherwise the mill will take place in private.

THE sum of $220 has been paid Austin Gibbons for expenses to go to England to fight Stanton Abbott, and the New Jerseyman will leave for Liverpool in a few days, taking with him the best wishes of his countrymen for success.

"SOLLY" SMITH, of Los Angeles, and Johnny Van Heest have been engaged to fight with gloves before the California Athletic Club, at San Francisco, in September. They are confined to 115lb in weight, and the amount to be contended for is $2,000.

GLOVES AT CONEY ISLAND.

A Win for Plimmer, and a Brace of Drawn Battles.

Popular prices had the desired effect, and the mammoth pavilion of the Coney Island Athletic Club at West Brighton was crowded Aug. 8 to its utmost capacity. It was a great gathering of sporting men, and from the time the doors opened, at half past seven, until the first fight commenced, one hour later, there was a constant pouring in at both doors, until there were fully ten thousand people present.

Billy Plimmer was the first pugilist to enter the ring, accompanied by his seconds, Charley Norton and Benny Murphy. Jerry Barnett came a moment later, with Jim Lavelle and Dan Canfield. P. J. Donohue acted as referee of this contest. Both men looked as fine as silk when they stepped to the centre of the ring and shook hands. Barnett was the first to lead, but he fell short, and got a stiff left hander on the jaw for his trouble. Plimmer forced the fighting, and kept punching Barnett in the stomach with his left. He finally succeeded in getting a good opening for his right, which he planted straight on Barnett's jaw, and knocked him on the broad of his back. Plimmer had decidedly the best of the round, and it looked as though the battle was going to be a short one. At the end of the round "Scotty" Levelle, one of Barnett's seconds, created a sensation by calling the referee's attention to Plimmer having something unusually hard in his left glove. The glove was removed by the referee, and it was discovered that Plimmer wore a heavy seal ring. When it was removed the crowd hissed him for taking an unfair advantage. Plimmer forced the fighting in the second and third rounds, and had his opponent very groggy each time when the gong sounded. Barnett made a game fight, but Plimmer's superior experience in ring tactics proved of great service to the little Englishman. Barnett got his second wind in the fourth round, coming up fresh and strong, and made a most admirable fight. In fact, he did so well that honors were pretty equally divided at the end of the round. In the fifth round Plimmer started in to "do" his man, and he kept sending straight left handed jabs into Barnett's stomach, once in a while landing a swinging right on the side of Jerry's head that made the plucky little Sixth Warder fairly tremble. This style of punishment was continued with telling effect through the sixth, seventh and eighth rounds, when he could get near enough to hit, as Barnett did the sprint act. The fight was given to Plimmer.

The next was also an eight round contest, in the 154lb class, between Charley Kammer and Jim Sullivan, both of this city. The moment they faced each other Sullivan whipped around his right and soaked Kammer in the ear with such force that the latter looked at him in bewildering astonishment. Sullivan, who has vanquished every man he had ever met, went at Kammer like a mad bull, and kept Charley on the defensive all through the round. Kammer was cool, and he hit straight as an arrow from the shoulder, landing with good effect. Sullivan, however, was as strong as a lion, and he took Kammer's blows like a glutton during the first, second and third rounds, while he kept up his hammer and tongs style of fighting. It was a case of science against strength, with strength holding out in an astonishing manner. It was not until the fourth round that Sullivan began to let up a little in his wild rushes, and then it was that Kammer got a chance to show his superiority, and he did it in great shape, as he hit Sullivan when and where he pleased. By the end of the fifth round Kammer had Sullivan pretty well broken of his furious rushes. In the sixth round Sullivan, under the advice of his seconds, resumed his rushing tactics, but Kammer was cool and met him with both right and left as he advanced upon him, which resulted in Sullivan getting his left eye opened. Sullivan came up strong in the seventh round and forced the fighting so hard that Kammer was once more forced to act on the defensive. It was a hard fought round, and both men got some very severe punishment about the body, honors being evenly divided, and both men were very tired when the round was finished. The eighth and last round, like all the others, was desperately fought. Sullivan did all the rushing, while Kammer lay back for a knock out blow. Both men are exceptionally hard hitters, and the style in which they punched each other and took their punishment was exceedingly gratifying to the large and enthusiastic assemblage, who thoroughly enjoyed the stiff slugging. At the close of the round the yells and shouts of the crowd were so deafening that it was impossible for Fred Burns, the club's announcer, to give the referee's decision, it being several minutes before it was known that Donohue had been unable to pick the winner and that he had decided the contest a draw. While the decision met with the approbation of the bulk of the assemblage, Sullivan's friends set up a vigorous hissing.

The event of the evening came next, it being a battle of twenty rounds, or more, or in other words a fight to a finish, between George Siddons, of the West, and Eddie Pierce, of New York. The former was seconded by Billy Dacy and Jack Hicks, while Pierce was looked after by Eddie Stoddard and Mike Haley. Jeff Carpenter and Bob Stoll held the time, and Alf. Smith acted in the capacity of referee.

Round 1. Sharp at 10.30 P. M. the men were sent to the centre of the ring. Siddons was the first to lead and he landed an easy left on Pierce's mouth. He landed again in the same place with considerable force and got away without a return. This rather nettled Pierce, who went at him with a rush and landed a straight left, and in the clinch that followed Pierce used his right like a battering ram on his opponent's ribs, but without much effect. Siddons did not do much fighting and Pierce was looked upon as an easy winner.

2. Pierce went at his man in a determined manner and Siddons commenced the running away business. Pierce followed him up once, but got his lip split for his daring. Siddons is a tricky fighter, and he showed his cleverness by trying to tire his opponent. He would let Pierce hit him in the stomach, face and ribs, and would only whip in his right or left with great force.

3. They came to close quarters soon after the call of time, and Pierce did some very clever infighting. He accidently committed a foul, and the crowd set up a howl, but Siddons made no claim and it was not allowed. It was a warning, however, and Pierce fought more cautiously during the remainder of the round, as he did not wish to lose the battle on a foul.

4. Siddons showed up as a tricky fighter, and his antics annoyed the crowd and worried Pierce. The latter would rush his man like an amateur, and when he delivered a fierce blow Siddons, who was very shifty, would not be there to receive it. This would make Pierce grit his teeth with rage.

5. Pierce forced the fighting and Siddons devoted his attention to clinching and hugging to avoid punishment. Pierce kept fighting at close range as long as he had one hand clear, but the crowd did not understand the rules and thought that he was fouling, and yells of "foul" came from all parts of the house, but no foul was committed, and therefore, none allowed. Pierce had a trifle the best of the round.

6. Pierce had forced the fighting so hard and Siddons had hung on him so much that Pierce was completely jagged out when he came up for this round, while Siddons was as fresh as a daisy. He abandoned his sprinting tactics and went right at Pierce and punched him hard and with telling effect with both right and left. Pierce fought like a one horse and forced Siddons to resort to the running business. While at infighting Pierce pounded his man on the ribs with his right until all present were expecting Siddons to sink from exhaustion. His body, however, was like a piece of rubber and Pierce's blows did not seem to affect him in the least. Pierce was very tired when the gong rang and Siddons only laughed at him.

7. Under the advice of his seconds Pierce was more cautious in this round, and waited for his man to come to time and do a little bit of the fighting. By doing so he saved his wind considerably, as he did not have Siddons' weight on his neck. At long range fighting, however, he was scarcely in it with the tricky Siddons, who would land with both hands with apparent ease.

8. It was easily to be seen that Siddons considered his task an easy one, as he would simply clinch and laugh at Pierce, trying to hurt him with his stiff body punches. The only thing Siddons looked after was his neck and jaw, but, outside of those two spots, Pierce was at liberty to hit him any place he saw fit.

9. Siddons did the run around act, and it seemed to annoy the crowd, who did not appreciate his shifty work and some wag hollowed, "Go on the floor." Siddons took things good naturedly, and only laughed at Pierce tiring himself trying to run him down. Pierce received many stinging blows by Siddons turning suddenly on him while he was in hot pursuit.

10. Siddons again did the Charley Mitchell run around act, and part of the crowd hissed, while others called to him to keep up his tactics if he thought he could tire Pierce that way. Nearly the whole round was spent in a foot race, with the occasional exceptions when Siddons would turn quick and nail Pierce, whom he invariably caught off his guard on such occasions. It was an amusing contest.

11. Both men showed up in good shape for this round. Siddons stood up and fought, doing just as effective work as his opponent. Toward the latter part of the round he did the run around act, and it worried Pierce more than a little bit. Pierce was too strong for Siddons face to face, but he was no match for him in a foot race.

12. Siddons, regardless of the hisses and remarks of the crowd, kept up his sprinting tactics and made Pierce follow him all over the ring, and nine times out of ten when he turned suddenly on his man he would land a stinging blow and get away without a return. He certainly did make Pierce look like an amateur, and the crowd could not help noticing that Siddons was a great little general.

13. Pierce stood still and tried to make Siddons come up to him. The latter did so and landed some pretty good blows, but before ten seconds had elapsed he had Pierce running after him just the same as of old and his cleverness in this respect won the admiration of the house, as they saw that Siddons was not shirking his work, but using great head work.

14. Siddons did the run around act and only mixed with Pierce when he caught him off his guard, when he would land with good effect. The crowd yelled "Take him off" but Siddons still kept up his monkey shines, while Pierce was gradually growing weaker from wasting his strength through over exertion. There was no question as to Siddons understanding the game he was playing.

15. Pierce forced the fighting and joined in the foot race, chasing his man all over the ring, and on one of the lucky

Baseball, Cricket, Etc.

E. M. S., St. Joseph.—A loses. The Kansas City team failed to win in one inning.

W. C. H., Franklin.—The bets abide by the umpire's decision, giving the game to the Franklin Club on account of the Emlenton team leaving the grounds. No answers by mail.

M. K. K., Montgomery.—B loses if he failed to name the four winning clubs. He is wrong in claiming that the tie game has to be played off before the bet is decided.

P. A. V., Philadelphia.—Two teams of Irish amateurs have visited this country, one playing thirteen cricket matches during September and October 1879. Nine of these games were won, three were drawn, and one, with an American eleven at Philadelphia, terminated in a defeat. Another team of Irish amateurs made a tour of the United States and Canada in August and September 1888, playing thirteen games, of which seven were won, two lost and four drawn. Both of their defeats were by representative elevens of Philadelphia.

H. B., Baltimore.—Our rule in such a case is that the winner must make at least two runs, and that a score of 1 to 0 is not equal to 2 to 1.

Cards.

K. S. H., Norfolk.—Other newspapers, and particularly the one you mention, have bobbed about from pillar to post on that point for the past quarter of a century. They claim a certain thing one year and contradict themselves the next. This obviously makes them unreliable and useless as "authorities." During a period of nearly forty years THE CLIPPER has never changed or modified in any way its original ruling. It is brief and thoroughly comprehensive, viz.: Any straight flush is a royal flush. There are good poker law and logic behind this regulation, and, so long as THE CLIPPER sails the sea of cards, this rule will find place on its banner.

G. C., Nebraska City.—He cannot accept the exposed card, but must be served with the next live card from the deck and before the players who follow him are helped.

THE HERMITAGE, St. Joseph.—A wins on his high.

G. G., Waterloo.—Agree among yourselves. The game is played and counted in all sorts of ways. We never give rulings on the double or triple deck game.

L. H. B., Wilkesbarre.—B was right in his assertion. He had a perfect right to order A up.

G. W. F., Rochester.—He could not "go alone" under the circumstances stated.

S. W.—He must be served with two cards, according to your statement.

C. A.—If he picked up or looked at his hand prior to making the discovery, his hand is dead; otherwise, it is a misdeal.

W. S.—See reply to "S. W."

G. AND K., Webster.—A loses the pot. The error was his own, and he is the only one who can be made to suffer. His hand is dead.

CUDGE.—The "buck" does not pass. It is No. 3's deal, and the "buck" still belongs to No. 1, is the way the situation stands, according to your statement.

JERE, Yonkers.—B was wrong in his claim. A builded correctly.

UNCLE TOM, Blenheim.—1. Certainly. B cannot be served in any other way. The next card is his. 2. No.

D. A. Y., Norfolk.—Any straight flush is a royal flush. See reply to "K. S. H., Norfolk."

M. G., Buffalo.—1. C wins, according to your statement, which is rather inexplicit. 2. B goes out, his high so determining.

W. H. W., Omaha.—Don't, for goodness sake, don't play poker with a joker. It would be less silly to throw stones at yourself.

L. L. K.—The money should be equally divided between A and B. They are winners alike.

M. and K., Boston.—M wins the pot. There was no law against his splitting openers.

Turf.

A. J. D., Worcester.—Maud S.'s best trotting record for a mile is 2:08¾, and was made in a time trial at the Glenville track, near Cleveland, O., July 30, 1885. The fastest time recorded is 2:08¼, by Sunol, at Stockton, Cal., a "kite" track, Oct. 20, 1891. Maud S.'s record was made on an oval track.

F. A. T., Milford.—You forgot to state any distance. However, you will find the records for all distances in THE CLIPPER ANNUAL for 1892; price, twenty-five cents.

Ring.

C. T. K., York.—The fight between John L. Sullivan and Jim Corbett is fixed for decision at New Orleans on the evening of Sept. 7 next. Tickets admitting one person are sold at $15; reserved seat, $30. Tickets can be obtained by addressing the secretary of the Olympic Club, New Orleans, La.

F. J. B., New Albany.—The regulation size of the prize ring is twenty four feet square, whether a fight be according to the revised rules of the P. R. or the Queensbury code.

Athletic.

W. K. B., Albany.—The genuineness of the performance is guaranteed by affidavit in our possession.

H. C. R., Philadelphia.—We do not know his present whereabouts. A letter addressed in care of THE CLIPPER will doubtless reach him.

W. M. A., Boston.—See THE CLIPPER ANNUAL for 1892. The alleged performances of Kennedy, referred to in your communication, has not been supported by the requisite affidavits.

Dice, Dominoes, Etc.

J. C., Brooklyn.—There is such a game, but it has become rather obsolete.

E. A. C., Wilmington.—1. No. 2. High. 3. It ranks as low when there is a six spot side to the dice.

B. J. O'R.—C and D win.

Miscellaneous.

"CROQUETIST."—We prefer that you should submit your dispute to Peck & Snyder, Nassau Street, this city.

J. J. T., Pine Bluff.—Write to the Scott Coin Co., No. 18 East Twenty-third Street.

C. C. R.—The party has advertised in our columns for a long time. We have never had any complaint against him.

R. M.—1. F loses. 2. It is not.

A. J. W., Pueblo.—The grizzly.

CHESS.

DR. TARRASCH LEADS.—We have but meagre reports from the masters at Dresden; but, luckily, they are fairly explicit. The first feeling was one rather of disappointment that Herr E. Lasker's headache did not permit him to enter. Delicacy of constitution is, unfortunately, his standing menace. This was offset, and a striking increment was added to the interest of the congress when it was known that the veteran Polish master, Simon Winawer, would emerge from his long and regretted retirement, and again appear in the lists. The Russian master, Herr S. Alapin, was unfortunately attacked with a sudden illness so severe as to necessitate his retirement from the fray. This left seventeen competitors, who at the end of the thirteenth round stood in line thus: Dr. Tarrasch, 8½; Makowits, 8; Blackburne, 8; Porges, 7½; Bardeleben, 7½; Winawer, 7; Marco and Schottlaender, 6½; Mason and Albin, 6; von Scheve and Gottschall, 5½; Mieses and Walbrodt, 4½; Dr. Nos, 3; Loman, 2½; and Wilfried Paulsen, ½.

THE CHESS MONTHLY just to hand, though late, is a full double number, and a splendid one. It is preeminently a brilliant number, as will at once be understood when we say it strikes out with a handsome portrait of that handsome man, Prince Dadian, of Mingrelia, illustrated by such a galaxy of ad captandum games as few masters ever had the honor of being illustrated by. Our only criticism on the collection is that, we would rather it had embraced more of Prince D.'s magnificent defences.

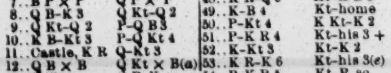
(a) Q × B would have been better, we think.

(b) Played, doubtless, to drive the Q for a moment to K Kt sq, and thus gain an attack on the hostile Kt; but, as he will eventually have to provide for the defence of his weak Pawns on Q's side, his manœuvre is perfectly unavailing. We may observe that the whole of the play from the thirteenth move had a tendency to weaken his right wing.

(c) Could × R P at once, with perfect safety.

(d) Considering the hopeless character of the game, Prof. A. judiciously sacrificed the exchange, with a view to getting rid of the most immediately threatening adverse Pawns.

(*) [And now if any one knows of a more stubborn, and all but successful, fight of Kt vs. R, we should be glad to have it pointed out. For the benefit of those wishing to study this specialty, we give the position]:



at K R, Q Kt 3, K Kt 2, R 3 | at K R 2, K 4, K Kt 2, R 3.

White to play—move made, 45. . R to Q Kt 6

(e) The Kt should simply have returned home, always remaining near his own K.

(f) A distinguished player present suggested 78. . Kt to K B 5; it is, certainly, a much better resource. See:

at K R 2, 4, K Kt 2, R 3 | at K B 7, K 5, K Kt 4, R 5.

Black to play—move made, 78. . Kt to his 4 +.

[Is the suggested 78. Kt to K B 5 enough "better" to soften his defeat into a draw? We should be much pleased to receive an opinion from Bro. Steinitz on this point.]

On Chess.

BY HUGH KALYPTUS.

Our readers must see the following extremely readable skit from The Adelaide Observer, even at the risk of overstepping our space: "I visited the Adelaide Chess Club the other night, and was much impressed with the extreme gravity of the situation. However, I cannot get the hang of the royal game myself; it seems to be a great deal more complicated than pitch and toss; in fact, there is more of 'heads' than 'tails' in it. I have heard it said that 'life was too short for chess,' and it strikes me now that we have no reliable record of Methuseleh playing it—he had lots of time, and might have made a champion. I cannot see any humor in chess. The King, to all appearances, is a kind of 'Mr. Doodles,' as depicted in a popular novel. His wife goes about transacting business, keeping off creditors, and bustling about while he just sticks at home, loafs around the square, and keeps out of the way until he can't help showing fight when cornered, and then he has not a long reach by any means. He does not take any notice of the Queen paying so much familiar attention to the Bishops and the Knights, and very often running after a Castle or a common Pawn. The King, as far as I could gather from the lazy way he kept out of danger, has not much spirit in him; he lets all the others round him go under without lifting a hand. Some poor little miserable Pawn will get right in front to protect him, and have Rooks, Bishops, Knights, and all doing their level best in a fight to dislodge him or keep him there; but never a move does the King make until his own skin is in danger. Now, I admire the Queen. Certainly she is a trifle too coquettish, flirting about with the Knight and Bishops, not to speak of the others, though meaning nothing; but to see her make a dart and knock a Castle (for instance), out in one act is beautiful to behold, she does it so neatly. She seems to care about the King a vast deal more than he cares about her; in fact, I have seen her sacrifice herself to a Pawn just to keep him out of danger, and never a word of thanks or a sign. I do not believe the Bishops are much better than they should be; they rarely act 'on the square,' but dart about diagonally in a very unclerical fashion. The Knights never do the 'straight thing;' they are always sneaking round corners, which is not chivalrous, and I have actually seen them treat a poor harrassed Queen on the other side most shamefully. They have no respect for the King either. The poor little Pawns are knocked about dreadfully, there is no eight hours' movement for them, they have to bustle around like a waiter at a restaurant, and get no thanks. Altogether, chess is to me one of those games that a fellow like Methuseleh might understand, because he lived several hundred years, and had time to think over it; even Solomon might get the hang of it, because he was wise; but unless you are a Steinitz, or a Blackburne, or a Charlick, or some fellow whose brain has been laid out in black and white squares, you might just as well try whist."

AS WE WRITE, the Skaneateles Summer outing meeting is in full swing of accomplishment. We would fain be there; but, ah, me! the augusta res domi. As an offsetting chill to Skaneateles, we hear that the United States Chess Association will not attempt a congress this year. So the Zoroastrian doctrine of duality in all things holds good, even in chess. There is no up with out some corresponding down.

CHECKERS.

Brevities.

Mr. Wyllie's score at Glasgow has now reached the respectable figure of one hundred and sixty games played, of which the veteran won one hundred and forty-five and the other fifteen were drawn. In all these games Mr. Wyllie has not played with one strong player, consequently a splendid score.....The long looked for "Kelso" will soon appear. So says The Chronicle-Telegraph. It no doubt will be the prize checker book, for Heffner has long been considered a great player and analyst, and as for Freeman, he is considered by many to be the greatest checker player living, having beaten Wyllie and Barker, and is now willing to play any one for $1,000 a side.....Frank Dunne, the noted Leeds expert, will not participate in the Chicago tourney.....McKelvie, in The Citizen, says that Dr. Schaefer, the noted New York checker player, who has attained considerable eminence in the medical profession, advocates draught playing as an agreeable mental recreation, as well as inculcating habits of forethought and prudence.....E. Grey, a noted English expert, is now on a visit to this country.....Martins has finished his tour tarough Scotland, and returned home. We sincerely hope that he can find a way to participate in the coming world's tourney. We remember him when he visited this country before, about eighteen years ago, and hope soon to see him again .... In the last English tourney, Single Corner was played eighteen times and Dyke seventeen times. The Dyke is becoming quite popular again.

BASEBALL.

DIAMOND FIELD GOSSIP.

Latest Doings and Sayings of the Baseball Fraternity.

The Providence Journal says: "Baseball, as played upon the field, is a legitimate matter of newspaper criticism or comment. But questions of salary and contract concern only the players and their employers, and should be so considered by newspapers. Does any one ever see the daily papers engage in a wrangle over the salaries of actors or the contracts between managers and actors? And is newspaper criticism of the actor's work upon the stage affected by disputes with managers and theatre owners over the actor's salary or contracts?"

The Manhattan Athletic Club's team has arranged the following schedule of games for the month of August: 10, Staten Island C. C., at Manhattan Field; 13, Harlem A. A., at Manhattan Field; 17, Oritani F. C., at Manhattan Field; 20, Montclair A. C., at Montclair; 24, Englewood F. C., at Manhattan Field; 27, Orange, at Manhattan Field; 31, New Jersey A. C., at Bergen Point.

Thomas Burns began suit in the Circuit Court of Chicago, Ill., Aug. 2, for $13,000 damages against the Pittsburg Athletic Company, operating the Pittsburg Baseball Club. An exchange calls attention to and says that, in 1885, "Third Baseman Mulholland, of the Sandusky (O.) nine, in a game with the Detroits, at Sandusky, made a triple play unassisted. Sandusky won, 2—1. Getzein pitched and Bennett caught for the Detroits, and Mitchell (now dead) and Jack Morrison for Sandusky. The following week, with Buffinton in the box, Boston defeated Sandusky by a score of 14 to 1."

A dispatch from Boston, dated Aug. 4, says: "Last evening the Baltimore players were joking and laughing among themselves at their hotel, when Halligan became angry at something Stricker said, and dealt him a terrible blow, breaking his right jaw. Halligan has been suspended for the season and sent home. Stricker will not be able to play for a long time. Lowe, of Boston, was hit by a pitched ball yesterday on the right arm, and received a fracture of the muscles and had the flesh torn from the bone."

The Boston Athletic Association team defeated the team of the Allegheny Athletic Association, Aug. 2, at Pittsburg. Neither nine scored until the tenth inning, when the visitors made the two winning runs. J. Highlands pitched for the visitors and was in great form. He retired fifteen of the home team on strikes, and held them down to four scattering safe hits. These teams played again Aug. 3, when the Boston team scored their second victory, the final figures being 5 to 0.

The Louisville Club has released Pitcher Viau.

It required eleven innings to decide the championship game July 28, at Spokane, Wash., between the Seattle and Spokane teams, of the Pacific Northwest League, the former then winning by a score of 3 to 2.

The officials of the Chicago Club declare that while the Pittsburg Club remains solvent it must pay every dollar due Burns, unless, of course, the latter consents to compromise. A Chicago lawyer drew up a contract for Burns that it is claimed "would hold in any court. It amounted to almost a promissory note calling for $3,000, payable in monthly instalments during a period of three years, Winter and Summer." The contract was signed by Temple as president of the Pittsburg Club.

Galvin, one of the pitchers of the St. Louis Club, of the National League and American Association, has entered suit against Haller, Beck & Co., the salt manufacturers of Allegheny City, Pa., for $10,000 damages for the death of his eight year old son, who on June 17 last fell into a salt well at the defendants' works, and was literally boiled before rescued. Hence, they claim, they were defeated by the score of 12 to 4.

A curious feature of a game played Aug. 3, at Lewiston, Me., when the home team defeated the visiting Lawrence team by 8 to 5, was the fact that the losers made three home runs, but each were with the bases empty, while their other hits were also widely scattered.

A team of policemen of the Twenty-third Precinct of this city, including the veteran, John Lynch, of the old time Mets, played, Aug. 5, a nine of the medical staff of the hospital at Blackwell's Island. President Von der Ahe, of the St. Louis Club, after the team's return home from its last Eastern trip, is quoted as saying: "It was the most disastrous trip I have ever had during my career in baseball. The club played just good enough ball to get beat right along. I can't blame the men, however, for losing games. The umpires had it in for them, and they got no close decisions. The home clubs were favored always. I and Captain Gore telegraphed finally from Cleveland to President Nick Young to see that we were given a fair deal. It was not right to let Snyder umpire at Cleveland. That is his old club, of which he was formerly captain and manager. My team has been in bad luck otherwise. Several of the men have been sick or crippled during the trip. We are just getting in shape again and hope to make a better showing. I released Galvin and Pinkney. I have nothing to say against them. They have played their best, but their work has not been good enough to satisfy me, and I must try to improve my team. For the present Crooks will play third base, Brodie second, and Caruthers return to right field. Hawke, the new pitcher, I think, will turn out all right. It is not a question of money with me. I am willing to spend my money freely for good men, but I must feel sure that those I get are better than those I have before I will make any change."

Charles W. Jones, the veteran ex-professional, has resigned his position as umpire on the staff of the Eastern League.

At a recent meeting of the directors of the California League, it was decided to abolish the practice of "bunting" the ball. Hereafter a "bunt," whether it goes foul or fair, will be called a strike, and the same rule will be made on an attempted "bunt." In case that the ball is "bunted" fair, the batter will not be allowed to run to first, and a base runner cannot advance on the play. The managers say that it will promote base stealing, double plays and heavy hitting.

George H. Starrett, 19 years old, died July 29 at his home at Jersey City, N. J., from the effects of a blow with a base ball. He was playing in a game on July 23 and was at the bat. The pitcher sent in a swift ball which struck Starrett on the head just above the left ear. He fell uncon

A remarkable championship contest took place Aug. 4, at Chattanooga, between the home team, the champions, and the visiting New Orleans, the tail enders, of the Southern League. No fewer than fourteen innings had been played without either team scoring a run, when the umpire called the game on account of darkness. Neal held the home team down to six safe hits, two of which were scratches. Keenan kept the New Orleans team from making more than seven scattering safe hits, four being scratches. McCann and Howell made double baggers. Murphy, the centre fielder of the Chattanooga team, made several wonderful catches.

An Exciting Struggle for the Lead in the Second Season.

Boston vs. New York.

By an uphill fight the New Yorks were able to tie the score with the Bostons Aug. 2, at Boston, in the seventh inning, on Long's muff of an easy fly after two men were out. The game was called at the end of the ninth inning on account of darkness, the day being very cloudy. Rusie pitched effectively, but his three bases on balls, with two fielding errors, enabled the Bostons to score five unearned runs. Rusie was well supported behind the bat by Doyle, who accepted all of eleven chances, his throwing to the bases being especially good. Some fine stops were made by Fuller, D. Lyon, Long, Nash and Quinn. Burke had little to do, but what he did do he did well. He and Richardson led the batting for the visitors, and McCarthy and Lowe for the home team. Nichols was fairly effective, but was hit safely at opportune times.

Brooklyn vs. Washington.

Superior batting and faultless fielding enabled the Brooklyns to defeat the Washingtons Aug. 2, at Brooklyn. Stein pitched with telling effect, and prevented the visitors from making more than five scattering safe hits. Duryea, although freely batted, managed to keep the hits well scattered, and was very effective when men were on the bases. The game was marked with many brilliant plays. One handed catches by Radford and Robinson, a one handed pick up of a hot ground hit and throw to first by T. Daly, and several fine running catches by Griffin, one on which he assisted in completing a double play, were features. Ward and Richardson also did good work in their respective positions. Kinslow and Berger each caught well, the former accepting all of ten chances without an error, and Berger all of seven.

Chicago vs. Pittsburg.

The Pittsburgs were beaten Aug. 2, at Chicago, in a contest that had a close and exciting finish. In the last half of the ninth inning, with the score 5 to 1 against the visitors, Manager Buckenburger sent Mack to the bat in Baldwin's place. There was one out and two on the bases. Mack hit safely, and was followed by Miller with a double bagger, and three runs resulted. Gumbert was very effective until the ninth inning, when the visitors guaged his delivery for three runs. Baldwin was freely batted at the start, but settled down after that, and did fairly good work in the box.

Cleveland vs. St. Louis.

Heavy batting marked the contest Aug. 2, at Cleveland, between the above named teams. The visitors tried three pitchers, each in turn being freely batted. The St. Louis team started off with an apparently winning lead, but after the first inning could do little with Cuppy's delivery. Pinkney made his reappearance with the St. Louis team, and his excellent batting and fielding were features. McAleer also played well in his position, accepting all of eight chances without an error. Virtue led in batting.

Louisville vs. Cincinnati.

The Cincinnatis were decisively defeated Aug. 2, at Louisville. Rhines was freely batted, especially in the third and fourth innings, when nine of the eleven runs made by the home team were scored. Pfeffer and Bassett did the best batting for the Louisvilles and Welch for the visitors. Stratton pitched effectively after the first inning, when the visitors bunched several hits and scored two runs. The visitors played poorly in the field, and to their errors no fewer than seven of the home team's runs were credited. McPhee's fielding was the redeeming feature of the visitors' work.

New York vs. Washington.

The Washingtons were shut out by the New Yorks Aug. 3, at the Polo Grounds, this city, they then making only three scattering hits off Crane, so effectively did he pitch. A singular feature was that seven of New York's eleven hits were made by Boyle and Fuller. Three safe hits, including a triple bagger, were credited to Boyle, and four, including a triple bagger, to Fuller. Crane used good judgment in his delivery and proved very effective throughout, and in the ninth inning retired the visitors on strikes. Ewing made his re appearance with the home team, after an absence of several weeks. Jones pitched well and effectively until the seventh inning, when the New Yorks batted his delivery freely and scored four runs. Dowd, Richard and Robinson, despite their errors, did some good fielding, and in several instances cut off apparently safe hits, and prevented the New Yorks from still further increasing their lead. This was Jones' first appearance with the Washington team.

The New Yorks scored another victory over the Washingtons on Aug. 4, in a game that was marked by effective pitching by Rusie and Abbey. The former held the ive pitching by Rusie and Abbey. The former held the Washingtons down to four safe hits, while nine safe hits, including a home run by Burke, were made off Abbey. The latter was most effective when men were on the bases. The visitors scored their only run in the seventh inning, when Berger was sent to first on four balls, he reached second on an error by D. Lyons. On Richardson's forced hit Berger took third and scored on Duffee's hot grounder, which Fuller failed to get to the plate in time to head him off. The New Yorks commenced their run getting in the first inning, and kept it up at intervals throughout the game, although they only earned one run. Boyle reappeared with the team and caught Rusie's speedy pitching in his usual fine style. Burke did great work both at the bat and in the field. Fuller and Richardson also played finely in their respective positions for their teams.

Louisville vs. Cleveland.

The Clevelands defeated the Louisvilles Aug. 3, at Louisville by superior all around work. Both pitchers did good work in the box and were safely batted equally as many times, but the Clevelands were more fortunate in bunchings their hits, and then by darting base running easily scored a victory. The all around work of Childs, with the fielding of McKean, Pfeffer and Jennings were features.

Timely batting enabled the Clevelands to score another victory over the Louisvilles, Aug. 4, when Sanders was freely batted throughout, especially by Burkett, whose four hits included a double bagger. Young, on the other hand, pitched very effectively, holding the Louisvilles down to three safe hits. The fielding of Childs, Davis and McKean, despite their errors, was excellent. Pfeffer and Jennings did the best fielding for the home team, each accepting nine chances without an error.

Brooklyn vs. Philadelphia.

Timely batting and brilliant fielding enabled the Brooklyns to score a victory over the Philadelphias Aug. 3, at Brooklyn, when Brouthers made his re-appearance with the home team, and reassumed his position at first base. Haddock held the visitors down to four scattering singles after the second inning, when a triple bagger by Delehanty and a single by Cross gave the Philadelphias their only earned run. The Brooklyns scored their first run in the first inning on a base on balls to Griffin and a triple bagger by Brouthers. In the fourth inning they tallied again on a double bagger by C. Dailey and a single by Haddock. Their third and last run was made in the eighth inning on Burns' three bagger and a sacrifice hit by Foutz. Carsey pitched well, but was hit safely at opportune times.

The Brooklyns won again Aug. 4, after an exciting uphill fight on the part of the Philadelphias. Knell was wild during the first four innings, besides, his support was poor, allowing the Brooklyns to score four runs and gain a good lead. He then settled down, and, with the exception of the seventh inning, when the Brooklyns earned a run, prevented them from making any more runs. The visitors could do little with Stein's delivery until the seventh inning, when Allen made a three base hit, and scored on Brouthers poor throw to the plate. In the ninth, however, a homer by Cross, a base on balls by Knell, followed by a single by Hamilton and a double bagger by Connor netted three runs to the visitors. A neat double play by Brouthers and Ward saved the game for Brooklyn. The fielding of Ward, Daly, Hallman and Allen for their respective teams, with Cross' batting, were the features.

Cincinnati vs. Pittsburg.

Superior fielding and timely hitting helped the Pittsburgs to a victory Aug. 3, at Cincinnati. Dwyer proved an easy mark for the visitors, who batted his delivery whenever hits were wanted. Ehret, on the other hand, pitched in good form, and managed to keep the hits made off him well scattered; he was especially effective when men were on the bases, besides he was finely supported in the field, Shugart, Bauer and Farrell playing their positions in brilliant style, accepting all of eighteen chances without an error. McPhee and Genins did the best fielding for the home team, while O'Neil and Kelly led their respective teams in batting.

The above result was reversed Aug. 4, when the home team tried a new pitcher in Sullivan. Baldwin was pounded in a lively manner in the sixth and eighth innings when eight of the home team's twelve runs were scored. Sullivan was very effective in all, except the sixth and eighth innings, when the visitors made all of their runs. The fielding of McPhee and Genius was especially fine, the former accepting all of twelve chances, and the latter all of nine, without an error.

The same result marked the game played Aug. 8, when the home team won by a streak of batting in the sixth inning. Dwyer had pitched in fine form up to that time, preventing the Chicagos from making more than one run, while the Cincinnati had hit Hutchison hard and often. The Chicagos bunched five safe hits in the sixth inning, including a home run by Hutchison with two men on bases, and, aided by an error by Comiskey and two bases on balls, secured seven runs and a winning lead. Hutchison kept the hits well scattered during the last four innings. Both teams fielded loosely and hit hard. McPhee led in batting, getting a double bagger and three singles.

The Cleveland team scored a victory Aug. 6, at Pittsburg and thus retained the lead in the pennant race. The visitors batted Ehret hard in the first and fifth innings, when they secured four earned runs and a winning lead. Cuppy was also batted freely, but fine fielding prevented the home team from getting more than one run. McAleer made a great catch.

Philadelphia vs. New York.

The New Yorks met with a defeat in the opening game of the new series, Aug. 8, at Philadelphia. Wild pitching by King was mainly responsible for this result, he giving three bases on balls at critical points and hitting three batsmen, thus helping the home team to three of their four runs. In the fourth inning King struck Reilly in the head and disabled him, he having to be carried off the field. Delehanty took Reilly's place at third base, while Weyhing went to centre field. The New Yorks batted Carsey hard, but their hits were scattered except in the seventh inning, when Burke made a long drive to left field for a home run and thus saved a shut out. Doyle hurt his hand in the fifth inning, and gave way to McMahon, late of the Kansas City Club, who then made his first appearance with the New Yorks.

Baltimore vs. Brooklyn.

The Brooklyns won the opening game of the new series Aug. 8, at Baltimore, outplaying the home team at all points. Stricker made his first appearance since his jaw was broken, and had two costly errors. Haddock held the Baltimores down to five safe hits, which were all made in the last four innings, after the Brooklyns had secured a winning lead. Vickery was wild and ineffective, and the Brooklyns batted him seven times safely in the first four innings. He then gave way to Stevens, who did good work in the box during the remainder of the contest.

Washington vs. Boston.

The Bostons scored another victory Aug. 8, at Washington, and thereby tied the Cleveland team for first place in the pennant race. Staley pitched in fine form, holding the home team down to four safe hits, which failed to bring in a run. Killen was also very effective, except in the fifth inning, when the Bostons bunched five safe hits, including a home run by Tucker, and scored a like number of runs.

MONMOUTH RACES.

Kirsch Runs the Fastest Mile Against Horses.

The threatening condition of the weather prevented a large attendance at Monmouth Park Aug. 2. M. F. Dwyer had counted largely on winning the Palisade Stakes with Nomad, but he got left through a slight mistake being made and rectified to his detriment. It seems that the conditions required Adelbert, Locohatchee and Pickpocket to carry 122lb each, while they were permitted to start with an impost of only 115lb apiece, the seven pounds allowance being made on account of an error in calculating the weights. Dwyer was a trifle warm under the collar, and not only scratched Nomad, but all his entries in the other races. The Red Bank Stakes for two year olds, at three-quarters of a mile, over the straight course, had a good field and proved a lively betting race. It proved an exciting race, and first, second and third came in necks apart, with Uncle Jess in the lead and Spartan and St. Michael following in the order mentioned. Summary:

Quite a little sensation was created 4, by Kirsch, a selling plater, running the fastest mile, 1:38, ever run on that track in a race between horses. The horse, which belongs to Pierre Lorillard, was entered to be sold at auction for $1,000, and was only run up $200. The track was very fast, and the large crowd present were treated to some good racing. The Camden Stakes, for two year olds, at three quarters of a mile, straight course, was won by St. Michael over a good field of speedy horses. The Trenton Stakes, for three year olds, one mile, over the straight course, was won by Kirsch, over Ha'penny, Fairplay, Airshaft, Zorling, Joy, Harlem, St. Anthony and Slander. The Eatontown Stakes, a mile, over the outer circular course, was won by Kingston, after a spirited race with Tenny and Sir Matthew. Summary:

A TROT for a purse of $10,000 between Allerton and Lebasco, the latter owned by James Ladd, of Beatrice, Nev., and substituted for Delmarch, took place at Davenport, Ia., on Aug. 3. The first heat was dead, in 2:13¾, the second was won by Allerton in 2:13¾, by half a length, and the third was captured by Lebasco, in 2:17. Allerton led by a couple of lengths along the backstretch, when he broke and came home very lame. He was then withdrawn, the purse being forfeited to Lebasco.

JUDGE KETTELLE, of Chicago, Ill., handed down a decision that favors Garfield Park in the case of the bookmakers arrested at that course last week, charged with selling pools. In substance the court holds that section 127, of the Criminal Code, was not intended to prohibit betting on horse races by the buying and selling of pools. It is not gambling to sell pools upon horse races within the meaning of the Criminal Code of Maryland, and the gambling statutes of Illinois are similar.

E. H. GARRISON, the celebrated jockey, has been very ill for some days with peritonitis, but was stated to be steadily improving at the time our forms were put to press. When able he will go the mountains in search of renewed health, and may not be seen in the pigskin for some time.

AT BRIGHTON BEACH.

The Coney Island Course Well Patronized.

A large crowd of people attended the races at Brighton Beach Aug. 3, in spite of the threatening condition of the weather. The track was in fine condition and good time was made. The talent had a hard day of it, as the "sure things" they had did not pan out, and they went home with flattened pocketbooks. Tea Tray was the favorite in the fourth race, but when he was beaten by Willie L. it made many of his backers feel very sore towards Bergen, his rider, and they so far forgot themselves as to hiss him at the judges' stand. Summary:

"Zimmy" in the Dominion.

The Hamilton (Ont.) Bicycle Club held races on Monday, Aug. 8, and the fact that the crack American rider, A. A. Zimmerman, was among the list of entries sufficed to attract a big crowd to the grounds. The prizes were the most costly ever offered by any club in Canada. The weather was fine and the path in capital condition, and Zimmerman was feeling good; consequently it was no wonder that he should have lowered the Canadian record at both a quarter and a half mile Summary:

Half mile dash, open—Won by A. A. Zimmerman, New York A. C.; W. S. Campbell, Springfield, Mass., second; G. M. Wells, Wanderers' B. C., Toronto, third. Time, 1m 12⅗s.

Three miles—Won by W. S. Campbell, Springfield, Mass.; C. H. Callahan second. Time, 8m. 31s.

F. J. OSMOND, the English crack rider, according to a cablegram, is physically under the weather, and will not make his intended visit to this country for the present. He had been announced to start for Canada on July 28.

THE PARK WHEELMEN, a recent organization in this city, is officered as follows: President, George Hussing; treasurer, Henry Gensrich; captain, George Slockbower. They have a club house at 217 East Eighth-fifth Street.

THERE is now a 'cycling division in the Prospect Harriers, with the following officers: Captain, E. Brereton; first lieutenant, W. C. Dow; bugler, M. A. Cuming. Over thirty members have already been enrolled.

New Records Abroad.

The English riders continue to slaughter the records, the previously unequaled performances of one wheelman being quickly eclipsed by the phenomenal achievements of another, so strong is the spirit of emulation among the crack pedalists. This is a very pleasing state of affairs, and as the season is yet young we may expect to chronicle many still better performances than those that have already been accomplished, and which are an indirect result of the stimulation occasioned by the visit of the American crack, A. A. Zimmerman. In the twenty-four hours contest for the Cuca Cucoa Challenge Cup, which took place at the Herne Hill track, London, Eng., July 21, 22, F. W. Shorland was credited with riding a bicycle 413 miles 1,215 yards in the day, his time for every mile from 90 to the finish being better than was ever before accomplished. At the close of the first hour J. M. Bates was the leader, with 20 miles 910 yards to his credit, and in the second hour Shorland went to the front, remaining there till the end. He rode a geared ordinary, with pneumatic tire. Here is the record by hours:

2 hours	40mls.	270yds.	14 hours	248mls.	160yds.

James and Thomas Dalton, with their old negro songs and dances, added greatly to the programme.—THE BOSTON HERALD, Aug. 2.

The Daltons, James and Thomas, contributed several eccentric negro sketches with dances, as only they can, and then came a laughable burlesque of a boxing match between "John L. Sullivan" and "Bob Fitzsimmons," in which two bright boys were the principals, and acquitted themselves like veterans in the manly art, and were a great hit.—BOSTON GLOBE, Aug. 2.

Amateur Match Race.

The eight oared match race between the crews of the Triton and Passaic Boat Clubs of Newark, N. J., for which they had been in training for several weeks, came off on the Passaic River, N. J., on Saturday afternoon, July 30. The weather was clear and warm, the water in magnificent condition, and the crowd that gathered at the boat house and on the banks of the stream to witness the struggle was of large dimensions. The distance was a mile and a half, and the oarsmen had the tide with them. The opposing crews were made up thus:

Triton—Willis (bow), 150lb; Milne, 170lb; Vinson, 148lb; Keer, 165lb; Vaughan, 180lb; Harris, 168lb; Ward, 156lb; Sutphen (stroke), 165lb; W. H. Osborne (coxswain).

Passaic—Vandeveer (bow), 141lb; Melick, 141lb; Sommers, 156lb; Barcklie, 152lb; Marshall, 175lb; Greenhalgh, 154lb; Gale, 160lb; McCoy (stroke), 145lb; Fred Heath (coxswain).

The Triton crew were a little the quicker in taking hold of the water when the signal was given, and they gained a little more by reason of one of the Passaics catching a crab at the third stroke. Their advantage was soon wrested from them, however, and at the end of the first quarter the Passaics were slightly ahead. The distance was quickly cut down, however, the Tritons' powerful thirty-eight stroke placing them on even terms, despite the forty to the minute pull of their confident opponents. As they were going around the flat, however, the Tritons fell behind a quarter length, by which distance the Passaics led, and this they doubled by the time the Passaic boat house was abreast. The cheering here was most hearty, and in response to the shouts the Passaics hit up their stroke, gaining another quarter length on their adversaries. After this the boats got dangerously close together, but sheered off before the threatened foul took place. Opposite the Eureka boat house there was a half length in favor of the Passaics, but here Marshall, No. 5 in the leading boat, began to roll, seeing which the coxswain of the Tritons called upon his men for an extra dozen, which were given with a will, and the spurt was maintained until they had driven their bow level with that of the Passaic boat. This settled the latter crew, for, with Marshal dead tired, they could not respond effectively to the challenge of their opponents, and the Tritons went ahead, eventually winning by a length and a half, in 7m. 38s., the Passaics following in 7m. 49s. The prizes at issue were eight medals and a silk banner. Claude R. Zappone, of the Potomac Boat Club, of Washington, D. C., acted as referee.

The Hempstead Yachtsmen.

On Saturday afternoon, Aug. 6, the annual regatta of the Hempstead Harbor Yacht Club was sailed off their club house at Glen Cove, L. I. The breeze came stiffly from the West and the race was an excellent one, resulting as shown in the following summary:

Fast Steaming.

The White Star steamer Teutonic, on her last voyage westward, essayed to regain the prestige she lost when the Inman liner City of Paris excelled her time by thirty-three minutes. The fates were against her, however, unfavorable winds and fog compelling her to reduce her speed below the usual average and delaying her greatly during the early part of the trip. On the fifth day out from Queenstown, however, the weather was altogether favorable, and she showed what she was capable of doing by accomplishing 528 knots in twenty-four hours run, being the best day's steaming on record. The strain was too great, however, and in the evening of that day a connecting rod of the port engine became twisted, so that she was obliged to complete the voyage without the help of that engine. Her daily runs were 477, 490, 500, 484, 528 and 206 knots, which under the adverse circumstances was a remarkable showing. The total distance sailed was 2,775 miles, which she accomplished in 5d. 18h. 46m., being but 2h. 48m. behind the City of Paris' record trip, made under auspices of the most favorable nature. The Teutonic will make another attempt to recover the horns, now so proudly worn by the stately City of Paris.

W. K. VANDERBILT having concluded not to have the sunken steam yacht Alva raised, the vessel was disposed of at auction by Burdette & Dennis, of this city. The bidding commenced at $100 and advanced to $3,500, at which figure the submerged vessel was sold to Perkins & White, of Boston, Mass. The effects of the passengers and crew of the Alva were not, of course included in the sale, but the purchasers are entitled to fifty per cent. of all that they may recover from the vessel, and notwithstanding the trouble and expense involved in raising the yacht, it is pretty certain that Perkins & White will realize handsomely on their investment.

The New York Squadron.

The present cruise of the New York Yacht Club is one of the most successful ever held by that body of yachtsmen, for thus far over 150 yachts have taken part. The race from Newport to Cottage City, Aug. 6, was a beautiful one, and was greatly enjoyed by all who had the pleasure of seeing it. A great race was expected be ween the Harpoon and Wasp, but the latter carried away her topmast when about five miles off West Island, and put back to Newport. The Mariquita also lost her topmast. The start was made at 11.30 o'clock, and the racers crossed the line on the starboard tack in the following order: Gloriana, Harpoon, Wasp, Sayonara, Quickstep, Azalea, Clara, Urira, Peerless, Verena, Mariquita, Constellation, Alert, Comanche, Merlin, Alcaea, Katrina, Phantom, Dauntless, Lasca, Athlon, Ventura, Fortuna, Gracie, Atlantic, Œnone, Huron, Ramona, Wayward, Marguerite and Iroquois. The Wasp was to windward of the Harpoon, and tried hard to blanket her. A luffing match was begun and continued for some time, fully four or five miles, while the Gloriana accepted the advantage thus offered her and flew along on her course away in the lead. It was a thirty-seven mile course and, as the sea was lumpy and a stiff wind blowing, the most daring yachtsmen had fine sport in the shape of getting drenched by the spray. Summary:

One of the most memorable runs in the recollection of the oldest member of the club was that which took place on Aug. 8 across Massachusettt Bay, from Vineyard Haven to Marblehead, Mass. The distance is one hundred and two miles, and during the entire run there was no windward work, while the wind was strong enough to make every stitch of canvas draw from beginning to finish. Under such all favoring conditions it is not to be wondered at that the fastest time for the distance in the history of the club was accomplished by the leader at the finish, the schooner Constellation, the property of Bayard Thayer, which was sailed magnificently by Nate Watson. All of the boats, twenty-six in number, were handled in a manner that reflected credit on their skippers and crews, and attested the speed and seaworthiness of the craft. In addition to the regular squadron prizes the Morgan Cups were also decided by the run, as was also a special prize offered by the regatta committee for keel schooners, which latter was taken by the Dauntless. The cups for schooners and sloops were won by the Constellation and Wasp. When off Cape Cod the schooner Miranda caught the force of a heavy squall and lost her foretopmast. The Wasp protested the Katrina for interfering with her. A summary follows:

Durnan Threw It.

After denying emphatically the charges made against him after the recent regatta of the Canadian Association, which led to his name being withdrawn from the list of entries for the national regatta at Saratoga the following week, Edward Durnan, the "coming sculler" of this country, has come out flatfooted and acknowledged that the damaging statements are true. Read the following dispatch from Toronto, dated Aug 6: "Edward Durnan, who was defeated in the last heat of the senior single sculls at the regatta of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen by Edwin Hedley, has made a confession that he threw the race. He swears that he entered into an agreement with, and at the solicitation of John Guinane, captain of the Sunnyside Boat Club of Toronto, to lose the race and win at Saratoga. For doing this he was to receive half the money that was made out of bets placed by his confederates." Captain Guinane has published a card, in which he denies in toto the statement made by Durnan as to his having made any proposition to him (Durnan) or having had any conversation regarding losing or winning any race in which he was entered. He says that he made some bets on Durnan, which he lost, and he proposes to ventilate the matter in the courts.

The annual regatta at Guttenburg, N. J., was held on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 6, finishing off the Atlantic Boat Club house. Summary:

The Ward Brothers' Celebration.

The twenty-first anniversary of the great victory of the famous Ward Brothers' four oared crew over the best oarsmen of the Thames, Tyne and America in the international regatta, held at Saratoga, Sept. 11, 1871, will be celebrated by the Wards—Hank, Josh, Gil and Ellis, together with their nephews, Dan and Ed. Ward—in a race that will take place on the Hudson River, at Newburg, N. Y., next month. It will be a double scull event, and the Wards will take to the water in pairs and show the rising generation that, although so many years have elapsed since their great victory, they still not only know how to handle a pair of sculls, but are able to send a shell through the water at a good rate of speed. The novelty of the contest will invest it with much interest, and if there should not be a big crowd to witness it we will be very much mistaken.

Newark Yacht Club.

This club will hold their tenth annual regatta on Saturday, Aug. 13, at 1 o'clock P. M., from the club house, foot Twenty-fourth Street, Bayonne, N. J. It is open to all members of the New York Yacht Racing Association. Elegant prizes will be given to the winner in each class, and special prizes for the best actual time. The regatta will be sailed under the rules of the club, viz: Time allowance, 1m. to the foot, ten mile course, length on water line, one-half of over-hang added. Classification: First class, cabin sloop yachts; second class, cabin cat yachts; third class, jib and mainsail, 20 to 24ft.; fourth class, open cats, 20 to 25ft.; fifth class, open cats, 17 to 20ft.; sixth class, open cats, under 17ft. Entries positively close Thursday, Aug. 11.

THE RACE for the long distance amateur swimming championship of England came off in the Thames River, Eng., July 23. The course was from Kew Railway Bridge to Putney Pier, about five miles and sixty yards, and the event was won by M. Drake, a member of the London Police, in 1h. 18m. 40s.; T. Orr, Manchester, second, 1h. 19m. 3s.; A. Ibbott, the holder of the title, third, 1h. 19m. 4s.

Feminine Yachtsmen.

Six yachts competed in the second annual ladies' day sail of the Staten Island Yacht Club, Aug. 6. Each boat had to be gotten under way, sailed and brought back to their berths by their lady sailing masters and crew. In case of accident there were a few gentlemen club members allowed on each boat as ballast only. The start was made from the club house at Stapleton at half-past three o'clock. The course was around the Bay Ridge buoy to the bell buoy off Hoffman Island to the Robbin's Reef bell buoy and return to the club house. The Ida was the first to cross the finish line and was followed a few minutes later by Commodore Hoyer's sloop Henrietta.

THE four oared crew of the Wyandotte Boat Club, of Wyandotte, Mich., winners of the senior race at the recent national regatta on Saratoga Lake, received a most enthusiastic welcome upon their arrival at their home, as they did at Detroit, where they took the steamer for Wyandotte. They deserve all the honors that can be heaped upon them.

THE FINAL HEAT of the annual race for Doggett's Coat and Badge was rowed over the usual course on the Thames River, Eng., on July 25, and was won by George Webb, in 35m. 32s.; Walter G. Hearn second, 36m. 2s.; Job Brain third, 36m. 20s. The course was from the Old Swan, London Bridge, to the site where the White Swan, Chelsea, formerly stood, and the distance is as nearly as possible the same as that of the championship course, four miles and three furlongs. The race is always rowed against the tide.

THE CHAMPIONSHIP COMMITTEE of the Amateur Athletic Union held a meeting in this city last week, at which, after mature deliberation, it was decided to hold the next championship field meeting at Manhattan Field, Eighth Avenue and One Hundred and Fifty-fifth Street, this city, on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 1. This is a wise decision on the part of the committee, and the probabilities that financially the meeting will be the best the Union has held for some years, and better than it would have been had any other city been selected. That it will be so athletically is certain.

JIM GARWOOD, the famous English skittle player, at a benefit tendered an unfortunate brother player at the alley attached to the Victory, London, July 25, undertook to beat the hour record of sticking up and knocking down 1,410 pins, fetching his own balls. Although he failed to accomplish the task he had set himself, he established another record by getting 105 nines in an hour. At the call of time it was found that Garwood had knocked down 1,393 pins, losing by fourteen pins only. The score was kept by Ned Hubbard, who holds the record for the hour.

BILLIARDS.

SCHAEFER WILL NOT AGAIN CHALLENGE for the emblem, but has claimed it and the states which were posted in the recent fiasco in Paris. Regarding the failure of Ives and Schaefer to play their match for the championship, Schaefer offered to play Ives in the Folies Bergere Theatre, provided that the proprietor of the theatre would give a guarantee equal to the offer of that proprietor of the Noveau Cirque (which was $2,000 above the main stake), but that Ives could not guarantee that money, and therefore Schaefer refused to play in the Folies Bergere. There is no rule, or law, which permits a champion to name a date and a hall in which to play a contest for the balkline championship, or any other championship, but the champion can name the city. After the refusal of both Schaefer and Ives to play in the Folies Bergere and the Noveau Cirque, the dining room of the Grand Hotel was suggested by M. Bensinger, of the Brunswick Balke-Collender Co., who happened to be in Paris, and who was asked to join in as a mediator. Ives, however, refused to play there, because he said he had secured the Folies Bergere Theatre for the evening of July 25. Thus the match was declared off and Schaefer claimed forfeit of the emblem and the stakes.

SCHAEFER AND CARTER defeated Garnier and Piot at cushion carroms in Vignaux's Academy, Paris, July 28. The room was crowded with spectators, among whom were many ladies. Five thousand francs were wagered on the game, thus giving the house $200, as its 20 per cent. of the amount wagered. The victory of Schaefer and Carter was received with great cheering and cries of "America wins," "Vive l'Amerique." Score, 300 to 227. The best run, 70, was scored by Schaefer. Garnier's best run was 29; Piot's, 27; Carter's, 16. The order of play was decided by four ladies, who drew numbers from two hats. Schaefer's individual score was 198, Carter's 102, Garnier's 142 and Piot's 85. Schaefer's average was 7 1-5, Garnier's, 5.1-14.

ON JULY 29, at the Folies Bergere Academie, Paris, some vulgar thief appropriated the cue leathers with which the cues of Ives and Slosson were tipped. At first it was thought the purpose was to weaken the playing of the Americans, but the tips were removed so cleanly and skillfully that it was easily determined that some of the shady French "professers" who frequented the billiard rooms of Paris had coveted the tips and appropriated them to his own use.

CHAMPION FRANK C. IVES has been offered $100 per day if he will remain abroad during the Winter. The offer probably comes from Vignaux and Garnier, who wish to secure him at the close of his present engagement.

AMATEUR NED WARNER, well known in hotel and billiard circles throughout the country, has located at the Sturtevant House, this city, where he attends the wants of guests from his position behind the office counter.

CHAMPION IVES and Slosson expect to sail for America immediately upon the expiration of their engagement at the Folies Bergere, Sept. 20.

MAURICE DALY AND FAMILY, having tired of hotel life at Long Branch, have taken a cottage for the season at Seabright, N. J.

WILLIAM H CATTON arrived in New York per steamer Arizona on July 31, and expects to return to France about Aug. 20, accompanied by Mrs. Jacob Schaefer.

CRICKET.

The Halifax Tournament.

The international tournament at Halifax, N. S., opened Aug. 1, when the representative eleven of that city met the Philadelphia team, mainly composed of the Germantown Club's eleven. The Halifax team scored 98 and 66 in their two innings, while the Philadelphia eleven made 89 in the first inning, and rain on the following day caused this game to end in a draw. Bailey's bowling was the chief feature, he capturing fourteen of the home team's wickets in all, eight being clean bowled. In the second inning he took nine wickets at the cost of only 25 runs. The second match of the tournament was played Aug. 3 and 4, between elevens of Halifax and Ottawa, the latter winning by 17 runs. The respective totals were: Ottawa, 35 and 137; Halifax 97 and 63. The umpire for the Ottawa team gave one or two dubious decisions against the Halifax team in the second inning. The last game of the tournament was played Aug. 5 and 6, the Philadelphia team then defeating the Ottawa eleven by an inning and 38 runs. The totals were: Philadelphia, 246; Ottawa, 119 and 89. G. S. Patterson and E. W. Clarke were the chief scorers, both batting brilliantly for their respective contributions of 89 and 64. The tournament series was thus won by Philadelphia, and with the victory goes a handsome trophy. The presentation was made on behalf of the tournament committee by Lieut. Gov. Daly, who had been a player for Halifax in the tournament of eighteen years ago. Prizes were also given for batting, best score, and bowling, Patterson winning that for the best batting average. His figures were 77⅓, and he also got the prize for the largest score, he having put together 89 runs in the match with Ottawa. Lieut. Bengough, of Halifax, captured the bowling average prizes, his record standing 14 wickets for 55 runs, an average of 3.3-14. Clark, of Philadelphia, takes the prize bat for the second largest score, which was 64. Each of the winning team got a gold pin. The tournament had a tragic ending in the suicide of F. S Dickey, one of the Ottawa team. He was about twenty seven years old, had played in 1883 and '84 with the Winnipeg eleven, and the Toronto Club from 1886 up to this season. He was engaged in the civil service, and was bowler of the Ottawa team and one of their best players. He went on a spree early in the week, and his inability to play seriously handicapped his team. At seven o'clock, Aug. 6, Dickey went to his room at the Queen's Hotel and shot himself. He had played against Halifax, but had been left out of the eleven that played Philadelphia.

Homing Pigeon Records.

The record for extreme distance by a pigeon is broken. Darby, Fred Bowers' bird, liberated in Pensacola, Fla., by W. S. McFarlane, at 9.24 A. M., July 24, was found in its loft at Fall River at half past 5 o'clock P. M., Aug. 8. The air line distance covered is 1,175 miles; the new country at the start, 640 miles; the time out, 15d. 8h. 6m. The best previous record for distance was 1,054 miles in one month's time. Darby is a black checker cock, was hatched in the Autumn of 1890, his leg band, put on him when a week old, was issued about Oct. 1. His flying previous to this season was only from 150 miles. This year his record is 1,522yds. per minute from 150 miles, breaking the record for speed from New York; 1,282yds. from 240 miles; 1,118yds. from 363 miles, and several days from 535 miles. His journeyings by air line since May 27 aggregate 2,473 miles. His average for 733 miles of it being 1,307yds. per minute. The first break in the young bird record made since 1887 was on Aug. 6, when the speed for the 150 miles distance was advanced to 1,230yds. The journey was by the two youngsters, Surprise and Diamond, of J. W. Brown, Pawtucket, from Madison Square Garden. The start was at 7 o'clock, and the birds were home at 2.40 P. M. The distance is about 153 miles, the average speed 1,230yds. per minute. This, the best by young birds this year, takes the lead for THE CLIPPER'S young bird prize, offered for the best speed from not less than 100 miles.

GOLD PLATED

WARRANTED GENUINE.

BOX JOINTS.

Don't buy a common looking silver watch when you can now obtain for the small sum of $4.95 a handsome genuine 14 karat gold plated hunting case, full engraved watch with a first-class full jeweled movement, a perfect time keeper, genuine full plate handsomely damaskeened and ornamented, fully equal in appearance to the watches regularly sold by jewelers at from $25 to $35. In carrying this watch you have the credit of carrying a solid gold watch, as the plating process is got down so fine now-a-days that it is almost impossible to detect the difference. The engraving on the case is just the same as on the high priced watches, and is in the very loveliest and latest patterns. Some will doubt our ability to be able to supply such a watch at this price, and to convince you that we mean just what we say, we make the following most extraordinary offer for next 30 days.

READ!

Cut this out and send it with your order, and we will promptly ship the watch to you by express C. O. D. with instructions to the express agent to allow you to examine it at the express office. If on examination you are convinced that it is a bargain, pay the agent $4.95 and the express charges and it is yours, otherwise you pay nothing and it will be returned at our expense. We could not afford to make such an offer as this unless we were confident that the watch will not only please you, but be a surprise to you. Bear in mind this price will be for 30 days only.
